Jet Explodes, Kills 5 At Little Rock

Eight Houses Set Afire, Two Civilians Die

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—A six-engine jet Air Force bomber exploded above Little Rock Thursday killing five persons.

Horrified eyewitnesses saw the B47 crumble in the sky. Chunks of debris hurtled into residential areas two miles apart, setting eight houses afire.

Three airmen were killed. Two civilians perished in their homes. One member of the plane crew parachuted safely, landing in a tree near a junior high school in fashionable Pulaski Heights.

Five persons were treated at a hospital for minor injuries and were released.

Thursday night, Air Force officials and the FBI teamed up in an effort to determine what caused the explosion. The Air Force asked civilians to cooperate by turning in any debris found.

No Nuclear Weapons Aboard

The bomber blew up only 10 minutes after it took off from Little Rock Air Force Base at 5:56 a.m. on a routine training flight. Officials at the base, a Strategic Air Command installation, said the multiengine plane had no nuclear weapons aboard.

Part of the bomber crashed in a modest neighborhood a quarter of a mile southwest of the state Capitol building, tearing a crater 25 feet wide and 8 feet deep into a corner lot.

Seven houses there were destroyed by fire caused by a flaming shower of debris. Jimmy Hollobaugh, 27, burned to death. Other occupants escaped, some in their night clothes.

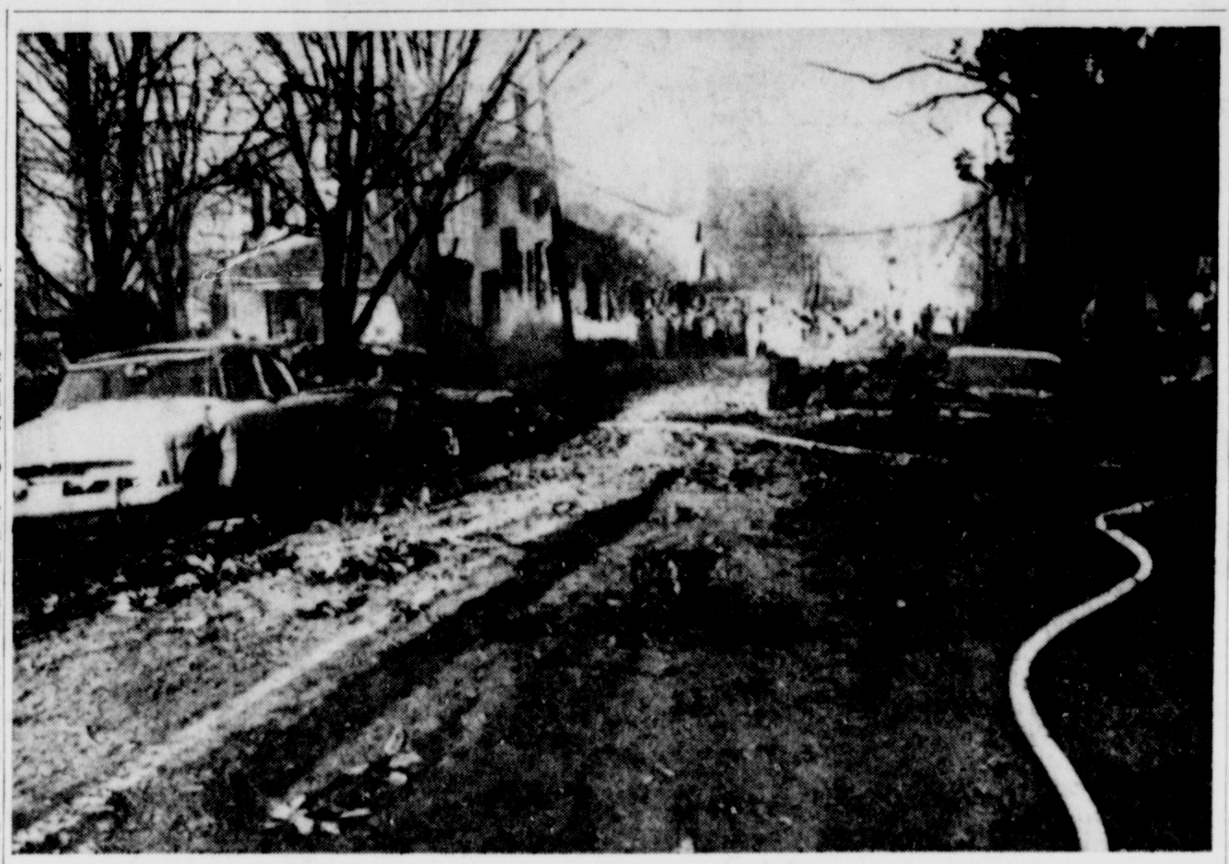
The fuselage of the B47 plunged like a rocket into a bungalow near Pulaski Heights Junior High School. Mrs. Andrew L. Clark, 63, alone in the house was killed. Her husband was out of town on a business trip.

Virginian Survives

Smaller fragments of the plane rained down between the two major impact points. Hundreds of residents, dazed and in night clothes, streamed from their homes.

The airmen killed were Lt. Col. Reynolds J. Watson, 43, Athens, Ga.; Capt. Herbert J. Aldridge, 37, San Antonio, Tex.; and S.Sgt. K. E. Brose, 25, Kewanee, Ill. All three were married and had young children.

The crewman who parachuted to safety was Lt. Thomas G. Smoak, Richmond, Va. His face and hands were burned. Shocked, he was placed under sedation in a hospital.



Debris Litters Street In Wake Of Jet Explosion

The force of impact when wreckage from an exploding jet military plane struck the ground at Little Rock, Ark., yesterday turned an automobile sidewise (left). Pieces of debris are lying in the street in foreground. Five persons were killed including two civilians. Eight houses were set afire as chunks of debris hurtled into residential areas. Tax Revenues Falling Short Of Estimates

Spending May Drop Enough To Keep Budget In Balance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Treasury disclosed Thursday that tax revenues are running below January estimates but said spending may drop enough to keep this year's budget in balance.

Officials reported the revenue shift in announcing that the Treasury next week will sell a 25-year bond paying 4¼ per cent interest—the legal limit.

This will be the first bond sold by the government since April 1959. The action was made possible by a dramatic recent drop in interest rates.

The Treasury will sell up to 1½ billion dollars worth of the new bonds as part of a program to borrow 2½ billion dollars.

Steel Strike Factor

Officials said they have evidence that taxes on corporation profits will fall 500 million dollars or more short of January estimates for the current fiscal year.

The expected drop was attributed to the widespread effects of last year's steel strike.

In January, President Eisenhower predicted that the budget for the 1960 fiscal year which ends June 30 would produce a surplus of 217 million dollars.

A Treasury official said the prospective loss of expected tax revenues does not necessarily mean that the surplus will be wiped out.

"We think chances are good for a balance," he said.

Farm Spending Under Estimate

For one thing, he said, spending under the farm price support program apparently is running below the January estimate.

The Treasury emphasized that it has seen no reason to change its estimates of revenues for fiscal 1961, which Eisenhower said would yield a $4,200,000,000 surplus. They also said that only corporation taxes are running below earlier estimates this year.

The new 25-year bond may be called in at the option of the Treasury after 15 years. It will be the longest-term bond sold by the department since July 1958.

Toned-Down Resolution Introduced

Council Is Asked To Deplore Mass Slaying Of Negroes

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The U.N. Security Council was asked late Thursday to approve a resolution taking South Africa to task for the mass shootings of Negroes, and calling for an end to her white supremacy policy.

Ecuador, a member of the 11-nation Council, presented the resolution which was agreed upon previously by representatives of the Asian-African nations.

The resolution came on the second day of Council debate on an Asian-African request that it consider the mass shooting of South African Negroes by white police.

In a last-minute change supporters of the resolution eliminated any reference to outright condemnation of South Africa. The change was aimed at winning British support. The word deplore was substituted for condemn.

This came as Bernardus G. Fourie, the South African delegate, returned Thursday afternoon to his seat at the horseshoe-shaped council table.

He had been listening to the proceedings in a chair at the side of the room. He quit the debate Wednesday after warning that any discussion here might incite further racial violence in his country.

The Council adjourned until Friday morning, when Fourie will be the first speaker.

The resolution proposed a key role for Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold in consultations with South Africa.

Ecuador and the Asian-African group were seeking a resolution that would speak out strongly on the mass shootings, but would not be killed by the veto of any of the Western powers.

Ambassador Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana told the Council it should apply economic or diplomatic penalties if South Africa refuses to abandon its racial segregation policies.

Whites Jailed For Lunching With Negroes

By The Associated Press

A tour of the South to study sociology landed a white college group from Illinois in jail Thursday at Montgomery, Ala., after they lunched with Negroes.

Prof. and Mrs. R. D. Nesmith, of MacMurray College at Jacksonville, Ill., and 11 of his students were jailed after they ate in a cafe on an integrated basis with seven Negroes, who also were arrested.

The 2-year-old daughter of the Nesmiths was the lone member of the party to escape formal arrest. Police turned her over to Juvenile Court until her parents made bond.

The incident gave a reverse twist to two-month-long demonstrations throughout the South by Negroes, mostly college students, seeking service at white lunch counters. Hundreds have been arrested.

The Alabama metropolis of Birmingham had its first such demonstration, 10 Negro college students taking seats in white cafes and demanding service. The eating places followed the Southern pattern of closing the counters until police moved in and arrested the group. The counters then were reopened.

At Baton Rouge, La., scene of demonstrations this week by students at Southern University, a Negro school, about 2,000 asked for withdrawal forms from the tax-supported college. Quiet rallies were held on the campus but there were no incidents downtown such as Wednesday's march on the Capitol by 1,000 singing demonstrators.

In a third major Southern city, Negroes pressed their campaign for integration with a suit in federal court at Memphis asking school desegregation. The petition, signed by Thurgood Marshall of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, said Memphis is operating schools on a biracial basis in violation of law.

Negroes supporting sitdowns at Tallahassee, Florida's capital, distributed circulars asking members of their race to boycott stores operated by white persons. Six Negroes there are serving 60-day sentences for disturbing the peace in a variety store sit-in.

Three More Negroes Wounded By Gunfire

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—South Africa's white supremacy government tried to subdue the nation's rebellious Negroes Thursday with a show of force by troops and police acting under emergency powers just short of martial law.

Three Negroes—and possibly a fourth—were wounded by police gunfire in Negro townships surrounding this metropolis.

Negroes resumed stoning trains, buses and private cars Thursday night but not on a scale to match Monday night's fiery riots at the climax of mourning for Negroes killed by police last week. The emergency powers decreed by the government generally reduced Negro demonstrations to widespread waves of frustrated protest.

With the government turning to force for the solution of its racial problem, police were supported by emergency decrees that appeared to encourage them in the use of their weapons. Reports of shootings had been rare since the first outbreak when police gunfire killed 72 Negroes March 21.

Except for a potentially explosive demonstration where several thousands Negroes gathered for several hours near Durban, the first day of the officially declared emergency passed without large-scale violence.

Flood Warning For Pittsburgh Area Is Issued

By The Associated Press

Rivers rose and losses mounted Thursday in a vast flood zone that extended from Nebraska to New York State.

Refugees from high waters were moved by boat, helicopter and ambulance.

A flood warning was issued for the Pittsburgh area in the East and the Missouri was on the rise in the Midwest.

Rain fell in the East. It stopped — temporarily — in the Midwest after washing away virtually all that was left of heavy March snows.

The number of homeless climbed to about 5,000. The total included 4,000 by Red Cross estimate in Nebraska, Iowa, South Dakota, Kansas and Missouri. West Virginia counted 600 and Illinois about 1,100.

The death toll of 8 included 3 in Nebraska, 3 in Missouri, 1 in Illinois and 1 in New York.

Boats and helicopters went to the rescue of families isolated in the Bellevue, Neb., area by overflows near the junction of the Platte and Missouri rivers.

The rising Elkhorn River put about 100 families out of their dwellings in the Wisner, Beemer and West Point districts northwest of Omaha. Seventeen patients were taken from a West Point rest home by ambulance.

The Ohio River rose. Pittsburgh expected considerable flooding Friday, chiefly in lowland sections.

Minor flooding occurred across Pennsylvania.

Mayor Claude Morton estimated 600 persons—or one-third of the population — were driven from their homes by the swollen Meadow River in East Rainelle, W. Va. Most of them were taken in by fellow townsmen and a few found shelter in a school.

House Unit Rejects Proposal Of Health Insurance For Aged

WASHINGTON (AP) — As expected, a key House committee Thursday rejected a Democratic-sponsored proposal of federal health insurance for Social Security pensioners.

The 17-8 vote by the House Ways and Means Committee sharply reduced chances for any government-paid health insurance for the aged in this election year.

On this politically significant issue, the committee's 10 Republicans were reported to have joined seven Southern and Border state Democrats in refusing to write the plan into a bill making a number of changes in the Social Security system.

Voting for the proposal were Rep. Aime J. Forand (D-RI) its author, and seven other Democrats.

Forand told newsmen he will try to force a House vote on his proposal. He would do this by filing a petition to take the matter out of the committee's hands. However, he would have to get at least 219 signatures—a majority of the House—and prospects for collecting this much support looked slim.

Under the Forand bill—opposed by the Eisenhower Administration—all persons retired under Social Security would get hospitalization, nursing and surgical services. The benefits would be financed by an increase of one-quarter of one per cent in the payroll tax on both employers and employees.

Bidding for a compromise, its backers suggested limiting the benefits to hospitalization. But they were defeated 16-9 on this, with Republicans again standing fast in opposition.

Secrecy Issue Snarls Senate Rights Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate argued at length Thursday whether the federal registration hearings proposed for would-be Negro voters should be public or restricted.

This was a warmly disputed issue standing between the Senate and completion of action on the House-passed civil rights bill, as amended by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

After a great burst of speed Wednesday night, when the Senate approved 14 of 15 committee amendments, debate bogged down on the 15th.

This amendment, introduced by Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn), would require two days' public notice of the registration hearings and would permit local registrars to sit in. Under the House bill the hearings would be restricted to uncontested proceedings before federal voting referees.

Kefauver's principal disputant was Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-N.Y). The two often are lined up on the same side in issues of political philosophy.

Kefauver argued for public hearing, saying: "How anyone can object to this is beyond my understanding." He remarked that he long has fought against star chamber proceedings in government employe loyalty cases and other types of hearings.

Javits conceded good intentions to Kefauver, but he maintained that the public arrangement would nullify the bill's efforts to help Southern Negroes register and vote.

But Kefauver said that if opponents defeat his amendment, "there will be uprisings and all kinds of indignation."

"Public business ought to be conducted in a public office and in a public meeting," he added.

Ike Aid Urged In Integration

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower was urged Thursday to use the prestige of his office to bring about racial integration of all public schools.

This action, plus endorsement and support for the Negro lunch counter demonstrations in the South, were among recommendations voted by a forum group of delegates at the 1960 White House Conference on Children and Youth.

Another forum group voted 303-50 to urge Congress to provide a broad program of federal aid to education so that the total spent on education from all sources could reach at least 10 per cent of the gross national product. Present such expenditures are estimated at three per cent.

Strong pleas to end racial discrimination on all levels in schools and communities were included as the delegates from hundreds of various organizations got down to action on what to recommend for America's youngsters.

Census Takers Begin Big Task

WASHINGTON (AP)—The 1960 census, the biggest and costliest head count in history, is under way.

Census takers set up posts Thursday afternoon in the lobbies of all the larger hotels and motels to begin counting the traveling public.

Friday morning 160,000 temporary census workers will begin a door-to-door canvas that will continue for at least two weeks. They will be supervised by 10,000 crew leaders and 10,000 field reviewers.

When the job is done, at an estimated cost of 118 million dollars, statisticians and planners will know more than ever before about the way 180 million Americans live and work. The last big census, in 1950, counted a population of 151 million and cost 90 million dollars.

Negro Cardinal Gets Red Hat, Applause

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The first Negro prince of the Roman Catholic Church drew a burst of applause in St. Peter's at a red hat ceremony for eight new cardinals Thursday.

Spectators who had watched in silence as Pope John XXIII conferred the flat, broad-brimmed galero on half a dozen as a symbol of their rank, cheered impulsively when the Negro, Laruian Cardinal Rugambwa, approached the papal throne.

The trim, 6-foot-1 African prelate, bishop of Rutabo, Tanganyika, knelt at the pontiff's feet with his head bowed for the traditional ritual.

Russ Reaction To A-Ban Plan Encouraging

GENEVA (AP) — The United States and Britain formally submitted their new nuclear test ban formula to the Soviet Union Thursday.

The Soviet reaction indicated that months of hard bargaining still lie ahead.

The formula, approved by President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan at their Camp David, Md., meeting earlier this week, was handed to Soviet Delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin at the 191st session of the three-nation conference in Geneva.

Tsarapkin immediately said the proposal is "an encouraging step forward," but leaves too many questions unanswered.

He told U. S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth and Britain's Sir Michael Wright he will submit these questions after the Camp David proposal has been studied in Moscow.

The new Western formula calls for a treaty permanently banning tests which can be detected at long range. The three powers would make a temporary gentlemen's agreement to refrain from low-powered underground tests undetectable by present scientific methods.

Senate Rackets Group Goes Out Of Existence

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate rackets committee passed out of existence Thursday night, ending three tempestuous years of investigating corruption and hoodlumism in the labor-management field.

Whether this really marks the end of the trail or just a pause before a revival by the Senate remained in question.

Rival moves to give the committee another 10 months of life, or to transfer its duties and records to some other investigating groups still hung fire.

No date has been set for a decision.

Nixon Acts To Quiet GOP Conservatives' Concern

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon is moving to quiet growing concern of GOP conservatives that he will move to the left in the presidential election campaign.

The vice president has passed the word to associates that in expanding upon the Eisenhower administration record as the prospective party presidential nominee he is going to avoid any "me too" endorsement of Democratic programs of the New Deal variety.

It is his intention—as one associate put it — that his steps in carrying forward the Eisenhower program will reflect conservative thinking but will be progressive in the sense of offering constructive solutions for national problems.

The vice president's political dilemma lies in the fact that he needs independent and Democratic votes to be elected in November. But if he appeals to these elements, dissatisfied Republican conservatives may sulk in the campaign.

If there is such sulking, Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz), said Nixon can't win the election.

Goldwater, who heads the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, expressed fear that Nixon may lose conservative backing by moving too far left.

Goldwater said that as a means of impressing Nixon with the strength of the conservative wing, he intends to accept the endorsement as a presidential candidate of South Carolina and any other states that may decide to give him support.

Newspaper Ad Blows Religious Issue Wide Open In Wisconsin's Primary

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Blazing denunciations from rival camps of a tiny but widely used newspaper ad blew the religious issue wide open Thursday in the Wisconsin Democratic presidential primary.

A high Wisconsin labor union official was involved, along with a former Democratic state chairman and a rather mysterious political committee.

The ad was published widely in weekly newspapers across the state. In effect it called upon Protestants to close ranks behind Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota on grounds that many Republican Roman Catholics will jump over to Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts in next Tuesday's primary.

Humphrey is a Protestant, Kennedy a Catholic. Supporters of each claimed their man had been hurt by the ad.

Humphrey broke up his tight campaign schedule in Milwaukee, called what aides described as an emergency news conference, and declared: "I want the record clear. Any and all literature, ads, statements, oral or written, from any source that raise the issue of religion, or the ugly fact of bigotry are not of my making. I repudiate them. I deplore them. And I denounce them."

Humphrey said he wasn't implying that Kennedy forces had any hand in placing the ad.

He said merely that: "There has been a concerted attempt on the part of some unidentifiable forces who obviously seek to do me no good, in fact to do me great harm, to inject the religious issue."

The Humphrey people were saying that the obvious intent is to stir up sentiment against Humphrey among Catholics who otherwise might vote for him, by making it appear that he is raising the religious issue in the campaign.

The chairman of the Wisconsin Kennedy-for-President Club, Mayor Ivan Nestingen of Madison, got off a blast at the ad.

"I deeply deplore this malicious attack on Sen. Kennedy," he said. "We are entitled to an explanation of the source of funds for this ad."

It was a two-column, four-inch ad, placed with the Wisconsin Press Assn., which brought the primary campaign to a new peak of frenzy and bitterness. The association is an organization of weekly newspapers in the state.

Its manager, Carl Zielke, said in Madison that the ad was authorized by the Square Deal for Humphrey Committee, headed by Charles M. Schultz, and that a $1,400 check to pay for it was signed by Charles Greene.

Schultz is vice president of the Wisconsin AFL-CIO and director of its Political Education Committee. Greene is a former Democratic state chairman, ousted in a 1948 leadership fight, now living in Florida.

Khrush Renews A-Test Ban Call

PARIS (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev proposed a ban on nuclear tests anew Thursday night while France ordered the air cleared over the Sahara in preparation for another one.

Barely an hour after he made the new call for a ban at a Soviet Embassy reception, he was shaking hands with President Charles de Gaulle in Rambouillet ready for more talks.

After declaring that an easing of tensions had made possible the May summit conference, the touring Soviet Premier added: "It is certainly impossible to settle all the problems ready for settlement in the course of a single summit conference. That is why it is best to begin with the most burning problems and the most important such as, for example, general and complete disarmament, the conclusion of a treaty of peace with Germany, and ending nuclear arms tests, if by that time the needed agreement has not been reached on that last question."

Kremlin Will Insist China Accept Any Disarm Pact

GENEVA (AP)—Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin informed the Western powers Thursday the Kremlin will insist on Communist China toeing the line in any world disarmament agreement.

Zorin made this point at the 10-nation disarmament conference, in which the Red Chinese are not represented. Although he avoided mentioning Mao Tze-tung's regime by name, his reference was understood clearly by the Western delegations.

Any concrete measures for reducing manpower and armament levels, he said, will have to include nations taking part in the disarmament talks and certain other states as well.

"Then," he added, "we will have a real reduction."

The Eastern and Western delegations are tacitly agreed on the need to bring in Red China, which could draft more men of military age than any other nation in the world. Both the rival disarmament plans envisage negotiations with other countries.

The Western powers urged Zorin to accept the idea of an international police force to keep order in a disarmed world.

When Zorin balked at this proposal, British Minister of State David Ormsby-Gore charged that the Soviet plan for total disarmament would plunge the world into anarchy.

Even after the liquidation of armed forces, big powers would have enough militia groups to dominate a small neighbor unless an international force was established to prevent such border jumping, the British minister said.

Launching Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The space agency postponed Thursday night a test launching of a 100-foot inflatable sphere.

Poor weather conditions at the Wallops Island, Va., launching site and along the Virginia coast caused the postponement.

Three Die, 11 Survive Tanker Plane Ditching

PATRICK AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (AP)—Eleven of 14 Air Force men who rode a disabled tanker plane into the Atlantic Ocean 40 miles off the Florida coast were plucked out of the water Thursday. Rescue craft also picked up the bodies of three who died.

The pilot, Capt. Richard A. Geiger of Wilmington, Del., landed the KC97 Stratotanker on the water at 8:16 p.m. Wednesday after trouble had developed in two of the plane's four engines earlier during an electrical storm off Jacksonville, Fla.

By 1:20 p.m. Thursday, all the survivors and the bodies of the dead had been brought to Port Canaveral.

The wine tanker Angelo Petri, the Navy destroyer the Sullivans, the oil tanker Sheldon Clark and the Coast Guard cutter Bramble participated in the rescue operation.

Geiger said an oil line apparently was dislodged during the storm and the No. 2 and No. 3 engines started to feather. Forty-five minutes after the trouble developed he elected to ditch the big plane and brought it down to a smooth landing.

As the men scrambled out of the plane, several were burned by the wing heater but none was seriously injured. Most of them were suffering from shock or exposure when they were picked up.

The dead were M.Sgt. Joseph M. Pheis, 38, Bloomington, Ill.; T.Sgt. Frank E. Bence, 34, Bay Minette, Ala., and S.Sgt. Shirley D. Renner, 27, Shelbyville, Ill.

Geiger told newsmen he saw Bence and Renner climb to the top of the plane, only to be swept off by a wave.

Maj. Robert D. Yates of Tampa, Fla., said the three deaths apparently were due to drowning.

The tanker remained afloat after the ditching and an effort was made to tow her ashore for an investigation but she sank in 350 feet of water 15 miles offshore.

Aid Bill Cut Slightly By House Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's foreign aid program came through its first and easiest test Thursday with relatively small reductions.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee finished trimming its portion of the $4,175,000,000 program. The cuts totaled 136½ million dollars.

However, the real test will come when the Appropriations Committee passes on the actual money bill. This committee considers the whole program, while the portion before the Foreign Affairs Committee amounted only to about a third—$1,400,000,000.

The Foreign Affairs Committee also voted to cut off aid to Cuba unless President Eisenhower specifically authorizes continuation. Some $350,000 in technical assistance is involved.

Catholics Advised To Vote For Non-Catholic If They Believe He'd Make Better President

BALTIMORE (AP)—A Catholic would be guilty of sin if he voted for a Catholic candidate simply because they are of the same faith instead of a non-Catholic who in his estimation would make a better president, a church newspaper quoted a theologian Thursday.

The Catholic Review, published by the Archdiocese of Baltimore, said in this week's issue that this position had been taken by Redemptorist Father Francis J. Connell of Holy Redeemer College, Washington, D.C.

No candidates were named. U.S. Sen. John Kennedy (D-Mass), a Democratic presidential candidate, is a Catholic.

The Review said Father Connell, in an article prepared for the April issue of the American Ecclesiastical Review, said that "Catholics are bound in conscience to vote for the candidate whom they consider best suited for the office, whatever may be his religious affiliation."

"For, while many of our citizens believe that it is lawful to vote against a Catholic merely because of his faith," Father Connell added, "a conscientious Catholic must regard it as wrong to vote for a Catholic merely because of his faith."

Father Connell emphasized, the Review said, that priests in answering questions on elections "should remember that he (the priest) is forbidden by the statutes of the church, to take part in political affairs as such."

Father Connell wrote that "there is nothing in the Catholic religion that should prevent a Catholic from being a good president."

"On the contrary," he said, "the teachings of the Catholic Church regarding the duties of those in public office, if conscientiously followed, would help a person in public life to fulfull his obligations more effectively."

The theologian said Catholics should be told that the church wouldn't benefit by having a Catholic as president.

A Catholic president, the priest said, who is an "upright Catholic fully aware of the teachings of his church" would know it would be sinful for him to show the church any special favors.

"If anything," Father Connell said, "it might be detrimental to the Church or to Catholics to have a Catholic president."

"Almost any national misfortune or calamity that would occurr," the priest explained, "would be ascribed to his religion by many non-Catholics, however free from responsibility he might be."

Ex-Dancer Acquitted Of Slaying Husband

BAY MINETTE, Ala. (AP)—A jury Thursday speedily acquitted a former professional dancer of slaying her insurance executive husband.

The jury freed Mrs. Charles H. Heyl, 42, after deliberating about 40 minutes. Mrs. Heyl, tense and drawn, burst into tears when the verdict was announced.

She had testified she and her husband had argued and he was killed by a bullet from a revolver she was holding. She said she did not know if she or her husband pulled the trigger.

Mrs. Heyl had been indicted on a second-degree murder charge in the slaying of the 58-year-old Heyl March 13 at their home.

Heyl was president of the Loyal American Life Insurance Co. of Mobile. Before joining the Mobile company in 1958, he was a vice president of Bankers Life Insurance Co. of Lincoln, Neb.

Father Of Navy Radar Retires

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The man who first took radar to sea—affording the Navy its "eyes" for World War II—retired Thursday.

His own blue eyes still are full of fire as Vice Adm. Maurice Edwin Curts, at 62, winds up more than 40 years of action-packed service.

This jovial, 200-pound Annapolis graduate epitomizes the Navy of World War II—a combination of scientific know-how and raw, fighting guts.

Radar wasn't even called that in 1936 when Curts was detached from sea duty and put in charge of radio and sound at the Naval Research Laboratory in the District of Columbia.

"We called it the bouncing ball," Curts said in a Treasure Island interview preceding Thursday's transfer of his Western Sea Command to Vice Adm. Frederick N. Kivette.

In April 1938, Curts and a group of men put to sea on the destroyer Leary, with a radar antenna mounted on a gun barrel.

"It worked," Curts smiled in recollection.

Little Alice Marie Adopted By Combs

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP)—Brilliant 4-year-old Alice Marie became the adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Combs Thursday under court orders for her to begin a normal family life.

Middlesex County Judge Jlemmer Kalteisen ordered the couple to screen Alice Marie from further publicity "for the highest welfare and happiness of the child."

The judge noted that the precocious youngster would remain a ward of the court until she was 21. He warned that any "exploitation" of Alice Marie could cause the couple to lose the child.

Pert, dark-haired Alice Marie became the center of worldwide attention after the state said she was too bright for her foster parents, the Combses, to adopt. Under heavy criticism, the state abandoned its stand.

Farm Prices Climb

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department reported Thursday that prices received by farmers for their crops and livestock rose 3 per cent in the month ended March 15.

The sharp climb brought prices to the highest level since last July, but they still were 1.5 per cent below those of a year ago.

Va. Fishermen Upset Over Md. Restrictions

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A delegation of Virginia fishermen on the Potomac River told Gov. J. Lindsay Almond Jr. Thursday they were concerned about Maryland's restriction of fishing licenses in the river.

Del. Walter C. Fidler of Warsaw and George Mason, a Colonial Beach attorney representing some fishermen, headed a delegation of 14 from King George and Westmoreland counties who met with Almond and discussed their licensing problems.

Members of the group told Almond that Maryland Fisheries Commission chairman, H. C. Byrd, had "limited rather sharply" the number of licenses issued this year to Virginia fishermen, who have to have both Virginia and Maryland licenses to fish in the Potomac.

They said, however, that the Maryland officials said the number of licenses issued to Free Staters also is being restricted and there is no discrimination against Virginians.

The governor questioned members of the group as to whether they had evidence of any discrimination against Virginia fishermen.

Fidler said it appeared Maryland has "gradually tightened up as the season progressed." He added that fishermen in his area "are very much concerned" that if the joint Maryland-Virginia compact is not ratified by Maryland voters in a November referendum, Virginians will be gradually frozen out of the river entirely.

Almond said he would not want "to see anything happen that might upset" the Maryland referendum procedures.

He said that at the earliest possible time he would confer with Fidler, the attorney general, Mason, the Virginia fisheries commissioner, and any representatives designated by the fishermen in an effort to determine what should be done. He said that if necessary he would arrange to go with representatives of the fishermen to Maryland to confer with Gov. J. Millard Tawes.

Optometrist Ends Life With Monoxide

HAMPSTEAD, Md. (AP) — Dr. Arthur G. Tracey, Carroll County optometrist, was found dead Thursday in his car. Officials termed it suicide.

State Trooper R. O. Dunn said a hose extended from the exhaust pipe to a car window. The car was found parked in a garage near his Hampstead home.

Dr. M. C. Porterfield, assistant county medical examiner, said the death of the 72-year-old man was suicide and due to carbon monoxide fumes.

Chinese Junk Soon Will Sail On Chesapeake

WASHINGTON (AP)—Joseph E. Jones, a Washington insurance executive, hopes that by May he'll be cruising the Chesapeake Bay in an authentic Chinese junk.

Jones, who owns a 50-foot fishing boat, said he has had a junk fever ever since he saw the one owned by the late Robert E. Ripley of "Believe It or Not" fame.

But nothing was done about it until the night before Easter a year ago.

"We were at a dinner party with some friends and were talking about another friend who is stationed with the Air Force in Hong Kong," Jones said.

"We called him and on the spur of the moment I asked him to arrange to have a Chinese junk built for me."

The Air Force friend carried through, and so on April 15 the junk will be shipped from Hong Kong and is expected to arrive in Baltimore about May 15.

"We plan to tow it down to my summer place at West River on the Chesapeake Bay," Jones said.

The junk, named Ho Lee Jo, is 40 feet long with a 14-foot beam. It has three square Chinese sails. Jones plans to have an auxiliary engine installed.

Non-junk touches will be foam rubber mattresses in the bunks and a cocktail lounge on the stern.

Jones believes it will be the first junk on the Chesapeake.

D.C. Transit To Open 16 New Bus Routes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beginning Sunday, 16 new bus routes will be started in suburban Maryland by D.C. Transit, the company announced Thursday.

The Maryland Public Service Commission Wednesday authorized the changeover.

The commission also authorized Inter County Transit to discontinue operations because of "severe financial losses."

The eight - story building is owned by an association of nearly two dozen rail labor unions, which also publish the 41-year-old railroad union publication, Labor.

Bartender Held In Wife's Slaying

HYATTSVILLE, Md. (AP) — Mrs. James Gibson, 32, of Bladensburg was fatally shot by her husband in an American Legion hall Wednesday night, Prince Georges County police reported.

Gibson, a 39-year-old bartender, was charged with murder and held in jail here for a preliminary hearing.

Underground Flood Study Funds Sought

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Joseph S. Clark (D-Pa) has urged an emergency appropriation of $280,000 by Congress for a study of underground flood conditions in the Wyoming Valley area of Pennsylvania.

Clark's request was made Thursday in a letter to Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D-La), chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee. Clark wrote:

"Subterranean streams and the Susquehanna River have been breaking into the mines of the area and there has been substantial property damage, personal injury and loss of income.

"You will recall the underground flood disaster at Pittston last year, in which several lives were lost. The current situation is a continuation of the conditions which caused the Pittston tragedy and it is my hope that the study for which I am requesting funds would provide the solution to the problems raised by those conditions.

"The Wyoming Valley has long suffered the hardships imposed by loss of industry and chronic unemployment, and it is vital to the welfare of the area that additional emergency hardships be prevented. May I urge you, therefore, to approve the requested appropriation."

Funk Proposes State Transportation Dept.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A Maryland official suggested Thursday one way to try to solve the difficult problem of mass transportation is for each state to set up a department of transportation.

The department's field, said John B. Funk, chairman-director of the Maryland Roads Commission, "should include highway, rail, buses, monorail, pedestrian-moving walkways, helicopter service and some forms of air travel."

Funk, speaking at the 36th annual convention of the Assn. of Highway Officials of North Atlantic States, said the department's interests could also cover "the satellite fields of parking facilities, heliports and subway stations."

Such a setup, he added, is necessary not only on the state level but the federal as well.

Funk asserted that mass transportation is being viewed with a behind-the-eight-ball approach. All the concentration today is on road-building instead of the entire field of transportation, he said.

Keep Zest For Life Strong If You Want To Live Longer In Twilight Years

BALTIMORE (AP)—If you want to live longer in your twilight years, a doctor suggests, keep your energy high and your zest for life strong.

Dr. Theodore G. Klumpp of New York City told a regional conference on aging Wednesday there are two main factors in prolonging life: preservation of energy through proper diet, exercise and rest, and a high degree of motivation with purposeful, useful activity.

"Useful activity provides high specific motivation — a justification for living these added years," he said. "When the incentive, the zest for living, is lost, senility is inevitable.

"Based on a loss of motivation and interest and, to a large extent, because of the fear psychosis against exercise and exertion, our mid-aged and older people reduce their physical activities with damaging if not disastrous results.

"I believe that we must do everything we can, as we grow older, to resist the inclination to slow down the tempo of our living. I am convinced that if you will just sit and wait for death to come along, you will not have long to wait."

Dr. Klumpp is a member of the American Medical Assn.'s Committee on Aging, which is sponsoring the conference with medical societies of Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, New Jersey, West Virginia and the District of Columbia. The two-day event opened Wednesday.

Klumpp's views were echoed by George E. Davis, director of adult education at Purdue University.

"You can run to retirement or you can run from retirement," he said. "To retire from is tragedy, but to retire to may mark the beginning of the most satisfying part of your whole existence."

Davis said useful activity should not relate solely to your job—he suggested civic, church and political affairs — and he emphasized these interests must begin before retirement.

Argentine People Losers In Election

By FRANCIS L. MCCARTHY
United Press International

The people were the losers in Argentina's general elections last Sunday.

More than seven million Argentines returned what was tantamount to a "no-confidence" vote in the Arturo Frondizi regime—but they failed to provide an alternative to it.

Roughly, Juan D. Peron's erstwhile "descamisados"—the shirtless ones—Ricardo Balbin's People's Radicals and Frondizi's intransigent radicals split about 65 per cent of the seven million votes cast, in that order.

Only a comparative handful of votes separaied the Peronist and People's Radicals. Each polled around two million votes. Frondizi's government party, on the other hand, got a little more than 1¾ million votes.

Biggest loser in the election was Frondizi. His vote total was just about a third of that with which he won the presidency in 1958. But the Peronists, who polled nearly five million votes five years ago when Peron was ousted, also showed a popularity decline in excess of 50 per cent.

The decline in Peronist popularity was even greater when one considers that from five to eight per cent of the Argentine electorate habitually votes in blank, and the fact that Communist party members also were ordered to vote blank.

Ostensible "winner" of last Sunday's election was the Balbin group which won 25 seats. But, even so, it failed to capture the Chamber Of Deputies in which the government will continue with a majority of 106 seats, despite a loss of 25 seats last Sunday. Balbin was the man that Frondizi defeated for the presidency in 1958. Up until 1957, the Balbin radicals and the Frondizi radicals had been one and the same party.

The top - heavy vote against Frondizi was unexpected in that his opposition pledged little concrete in the way of parliamentary or economic reform in the event of decisive victory.

The Balbin group, for example, campaigned on a pledge that it would "re-survey" Argentine agreements with outside nations, specifically the United States, which it contended "jeopardized" the national sovereignty. But without a congressional majority the Balbin group can not realize even this minimal campaign pledge.

A covered dish luncheon was planned to be held in conjunction with the meeting April 28 at the church.

Medical Assistants Plan April 27 Dinner-Meeting

The Medical Assistants of Allegany County selected the date and types of meetings at its second organizational meeting, held Wednesday evening at the Woman's Civic Club house. Mrs. Virginia Keller presided.

It was decided to meet the last Wednesday of each month. They will alternate between dinner meetings at 6:30 and a business session, followed by a social at 7:30. The place for the meetings also will be selected monthly.

Arrangements were made for a dinner meeting, to be held April 27 at 6:30 at the Cumberland Country Club. Any medical assistant interested in attending is asked to call Miss Mary Melligan for dinner reservation and transportation by April 25. Calls are to be made at PA 2-2300 or after 5 o'clock, at PA 2-3146.

Plans were formulated for programs for educational purposes as well as social activities. Later the county organization will affiliate with the state and national groups.

Two committees were appointed. Miss Melligan was named chairman of hospitality; and Mrs. Grace Fleming, chairman of membership. The latter will be assisted by a committee composed of Mrs. Mary Lu Duby, Mrs. Elizabeth Davis, Mrs. Olive Metz, Frostburg; Mrs. Bernice Clark and Mrs. Mary Frances Adams.

Council Marks 16th Anniversary

The 16th anniversary of Algonquin Council No. 54, Degree of Pocahontas, was celebrated at a party and past Pocahontas pins were presented March 24 at the Red Men's hall, Bedford street. Ewald Ruehl, past great sachem of Maryland, was master of ceremonies and presented the pins to Mrs. Dorothy Combs and Mrs. Alice Conn.

Algonquin Council was instituted on March 21, 1944. Of the 25 charter members, five are still active. They are Mrs. Lois Wilson, Mrs. Esther Wartzack, Mrs. Nellie Wright, Walter Perdew and Mrs. Mayme Bramble, past great Pocahontas of Maryland.

A centerpiece of gladiolus was presented to Mrs. Ruehl by Mrs. Wilson. Mrs. Ruehl then sent it to Mrs. Bramble, who is a patient in Memorial Hospital.

Great chiefs attending were William Buchholtz, past great sachem; Albert Holler, Westernport, past great sachem; and Mr. Ruehl.

Approximately 150 members and guests attended. Refreshments were served, followed by a dance with music by "Mr. and Mrs. Rhythm."

Receives Member

The Ladies Auxiliary 1428 of the National Association of letter Carriers received Mrs. Charles Gellner as a member at the meeting in the home of Mrs. Walter Alexander, LaVale. Mrs. Eugene Sewell presided.

Routine reports were given by Mrs. Alexander, Mrs. Robert Horstman and Mrs. Michael Cunningham. The next meeting will be April 26 at the home of Mrs. Gerald Allen, 1308 Oldtown Road.

The Owls Auxiliary will hold its semi-monthly meeting tonight at the home.

Egg Roll Is Being Planned

A combined meeting of all five of the Ali Ghan Marching Units will be held April 6 at the Ali Ghan Country Club, beginning at 8 o'clock. Roscoe McElfish, president of the Ali Ghan Uniformed Bodies, will preside.

At that time plans will be completed for the annual Easter egg roll to be held Easter Sunday at the Shrine country club, sponsored by all bodies, instead of by the Drum and Bugle Corps alone as formerly.

It is part of the program being developed to combine Shrine-wide activities, instead of having five smaller functions a month. Droze G. Zembower, president of the Drum and Bugle Corps, said last evening.

Stage, Agriculture Provide Surprise Russ Developments

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP) — There have been two important developments in the Soviet Union in the past months which may spell out what might be a real change here. One was on the stage and one was in agriculture.

The agricultural affair made headlines because Premier Nikita Khrushchev got into the act. The other has been noted only by the limited number of people who go to shows in Moscow.

For the first time that anybody here can remember, actors have been doing satiric skits about government workers and regulations, and about the unending propaganda. And they are doing it with a certain degree of official approval —so far.

There was a sort of revue which started in January full of jibes aimed at rich jobholders, bribe-takers, food queues and do-gooder propaganda.

Maria Miranova, middle-aged and sprightly, and her husband, Alexander Menaker, took most of the parts. As soon as the show opens in the Theater Strada (variety) the actors start kidding public officials who tell people what they should see and read.

"Why should you bother about what you want to see and what you don't want to see in the theater?" asked Menaker from the stage. "There was a big article published in one of the papers recently and it says it, comrade."

"But I would rather decide for myself," replied an actor planted in the audience. "I should like to see plays about personal problems, about things that happen to people like me."

"You're not supposed to be interested in personal problems of everyday life any more," retorted Menaker onstage. "You are above it."

In another skit about a housewife, Maria Miranova began: "sorry for not having my notes with me, but all the thoughts are my own." It got a giggle from the audience.

Then there was a skit about bribe-takers. A man walks into a tailor shop with material for a suit and hands it in along with a 100-ruble note to get better and faster tailoring.

"What is this," demands the tailor, "a bribe? I'll call the director immediately." Then, after a pause: "he takes bribes, too."

We were seated in the front row with our interpreter. During the show, she gave me a brief running translation and took notes. I also took notes.

The actors saw this and it clearly bothered them. Maria Miranova was particularly disturbed. I thought they suspected us of being a police team.

At intermission we went backstage, introduced ourselves, and I asked her if she thought we were police agents.

"Not at all," said Maria Mironova. "It has already been approved by the cultural authorities. They liked it. They changed a few words and lines, but very little.

"We thought you were provincial actors trying to steal our lines. It upset me terribly at one point."

Now to the agricultural affair. The important development here was that 138,000 Soviets working in Khrushchev's pet virgin lands area of Kazakhstan put down their tools because of tough working conditions. That factor, coupled with mismanagement in the whole Kazakhstan planting and harvesting season last year brought disaster to one Communist leader.

He was Nikolai Belyaev who, from a job roughly equivalent to governor of one of the biggest chunks of land in the Soviet Union, was busted down to the party chairmanship of a little region the size of an American county. It happened after Khrushchev had given him a public bawling-out.

Part of the trouble was that 38,000 young men from western Russia who had been sent to the virgin lands to help build them up quit their jobs and returned home. Another 100,000 found working conditions so disagreeable under Belyaev's regime that they staged a sort of non-violent sitdown. This was reported in public some time ago when Dinmukhamed A. Kunaev took over from Belyaev and told all at a formal meeting.

It doesn't take much backtracking to recall a time when at least a major portion of the 138,000 unhappy workers would have given a long second thought before quitting work. If it had happened under Stalin the story likely would have been vastly different.

But now the man blamed for mismanagement was busted, not shot, and the men who kicked up their heels—well, so far there is not the slightest indication that they have been punished. Instead, better housing, more clothes, better food, picture shows and radios have been promised them on a speeded-up schedule.

Like the satires in the Moscow theater, that represents a considerable change in these parts.

Treasure Map Pays Off

MOUNT PROSPECT, Ill. (AP) —Gold pieces worth at least $100,000, buried in the backyard of a Chicago investment broker before his death, have been spaded up with the aid of a treasure map.

The gold, found in bags buried under two fruit trees on the property of Stanley R. Pierce, was unearthed two weeks ago by representatives of the Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Co.

The bank, acting as executor of Pierce's estate, confirmed the treasure trove Wednesday. Pierce died last Dec. 25 at the age of 67 of a heart ailment.

A source outside the bank said the backyard treasure hunt was started when bank representatives, making an inventory of the estate, came upon a safe combination scribbled on a desk pad in Pierce's home.

Investigators found and opened a safe in the garage of the home. Inside the small vault was a map which showed the location of the gold cache.

Pierce, a widower with no children, left the bulk of his estate, estimated at half a million dollars, to the University of Chicago. He was a star fullback for Chicago's Maroons in 1913.

DOUBLE BUNDLES

NEW YORK (UPI) — Plural births are a relatively uncommon occurrence. Of the approximately 27.7 million confinements in the United States during the seven year period, 1951 to 1957, less than 300,000 resulted in a plural birth in which at least one infant was born alive. This is a frequency of a little more than 10 per 1,000 confinements.

PENNIES ADD UP

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (UPI) — The office of a local vending machine firm was burglarized of $3,500 in coins. It was estimated that the loot weighed between 180 and 200 pounds.

TAKING WHAT TO WHERE?

WALPOLE, Mass. (UPI) — Costumes rented from a Boston costume firm for the cast of "My Three Angels" at Massachusetts State Prison included three prison uniforms.

Woman To Woman

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — A strain of lighthearted madness running through spring's fashion picture goes to the ears.

The madness is in earrings. It's made to order for the gal with a streak of gypsy in her soul, reports the fashion coordination institute.

The new hoops—fluttering, jangling — are a far cry from the traditional simple earring. The contemporary version is marked by the glitter of ornamentation that hangs either inside the hoop or dangles from the bottom of the circle.

Styles range all the way from precious gold and jewels, through classic gold-filled hoops, to glorious, golden costume creations ajingle with fake coins. Some of the hoops are strung with crystals, beads or set with sparkling facsimile cut stones.

The fashion coordination institute cites three reasons for the trend. The first is the influence of the Paris couturier house of Nina Ricci in finding a place for the gypsy hoops in the overall fashion picture.

The second reason has to do with the present fluid line of clothes — of bias-cut bodices and fuller skirts, giving a real look and feel of movement to togs.

"The movement of the gypsy earring fits into this format, both in appearance and in feeling. New hairstyles, covering the ear, also call for an earring with a high degree of visibility — which the gypsy hoop provides," the institute reported.

The third reason stems from the conservatism of the general fashion picture. Simple, understated, wearable clothes, in soft neutral colors, flatter a woman this season. But the lack of fashion extremes in suits and dresses leaves the feminine appetite for drama relatively unsated.

"The simplicity of clothes," the institute said, "allows for the dramatic touch of the gypsy earring without appearing overdone. At the same time, the eternal feminine hunger for fashion excitement is satisfied."

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the country's biggest banks sees 1960 still promising to be a record year for business.

But, says the Chase Manhattan Bank of New York, perhaps it won't be the boom year anticipated by many.

The bank, in its business review, notes that the economy has passed the 500-billion-dollar annual rate of national production.

"Prospects for a continued, though moderate, advance in the months ahead appear favorable," it says.

Chase Manhattan lists adverse fa tors of the first quarter of the year—which caused some economists to revise their optimistic predictions—as:

1. Steel and automobile inventories were rebuilt more rapidly than anticipated.

2. Retail sales of automobiles and other products did not measure up to earlier expectations.

3. Common stock prices dropped nine per cent between the beginning of January and mid-March.

"At the same time," Chase Manhattan says, "industrial production reached new highs. Personal income continued to increase. And total economic activity rebounded from the steel strike.

"Thus, what had been expected to be a boom has turned out to be a period of normal expansion. And this expansion has taken place in an atmosphere of price stability."

Butler To Keynote Mock Convention

BALTIMORE (AP)—Democratict National Chairman Paul M. Butler is the scheduled keynote speaker for a mock Democratic presidential nominating convention at Morgan State College Friday.

The program is sponsored by the college's Institute on Political Education. Dr. G. James Fleming, institute director, said that more than 750 students from Morgan and other colleges and universities will take part.

Butler will speak when the students assemble in Hurt Gymnasium at 10 a. m. Nominations and balloting are scheduled in the afternoon.

Fleming said the convention is modeled after the Democratic session because there is little likelihood of a contest in the Republican convention this year.

Chicago School Helps Youngsters Find Minds In Hiding

By ROBERT GOLDENSTEIN
Associated Press Science Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Almost from the time she could walk, Jane imitated the family dog. She spent her days crouching with him under the table or sink, chewing bones and lapping water from his dish. She hated people so intensely that by the time she learned to walk she gave up trying to talk.

Karen, at 10, seemed completely unaware anything existed. She couldn't talk or take care of her most simple needs.

Harry, an all-round bad boy, had such a compulsion to run away from home at nights he went to bed with his clothes on. He tried to set his sister's hair on fire, attacked his mother with a butcher knife, killed a pet cat, and was arrested several times for stealing.

These three are pupils, or former pupils, of the University of Chicago's Sonia Shankman Orthogenic School.

Before coming to the school, many of its emotionally disturbed children had been shunted aside as feeble-minded, insane or hopeless delinquents. Others had been engulfed and emotionally drowned by a superficial parental love that prevented them from developing a personality of their own.

Dr. Bruno Bettelheim, principal of the school, is professor of educational psychology in the Department of Educational Psychology and Psychiatry at the University of Chicago. He believes a quarter to a third of the thousands of children languishing in state institutions as feeble minded are not mentally deficient at all.

Their neurotic behavior, he believes, can be resolved in many cases by proper treatment. More important, he feels that the disturbances that trigger abnormal behavior could have been avoided entirely if the children had been reared in proper fashion and environment.

That is the goal of the research in the school—to find a pattern for preventing emotional breakdowns in children with potential normal intelligence.

The job of revamping warped personalities is long and costly. The average pupil spends seven years in the full-time boarding school at a cost of around $70,000.

Tuition charges of $5,600 a year defray part of the cost. Scholarships and donations help make up the balance.

No child does housework or any other chore. The locks are so arranged that no door can be locked from the outside. Physical punishment is absolutely forbidden. Each child has a personal counselor. Except for the counselor, no staff member of the school can enter a child's dormitory without the child's permission.

The school operates on the premise the children are not responsible for their past behavior. Rather, their disturbances come from irrational discipline and irrational punishments, often alternating with neglect.

Members of the school's staff realize that the child's neurotic behavior is the defense he had adopted in trying to cope with an unbearable life. Usually the child comes to realize that his old efforts to fight back or withdraw are no real way to deal with the new life.

Successful rehabilitation, while encouragingly high, is not 100 per cent. Dr. Bettelheim estimates that of the 41 children in the school, 27 will make a full adjustment and find completely normal lives. Nine others are making limited adjustments that will enable them to hold down jobs or perform tasks requiring only simple operations. The remaining five are listed as doubtful now. However, they have been at the school two years or less.

Harry, the truant, is one of the school's shining successes. He is married and holding down a responsible job. The turning point in his case came when he decided that school officials really worried about what might happen to him when he ran away.

Jane, the dog imitator, and Karen, the silent one, are improv-

Lewis' Sauk Centre, Indignant 40 Years Ago, Now Lauds Him

SAUK CENTRE, Minn. (UPI)—The indignant Sauk Centre of 40 years ago—and its sulking Main Street—now praise Sinclair Lewis' works in bright, proud lights.

But it took 40 years for the small community to honor a native son whose attack on all the Sauk Centres of Midwestern America helped earn him the Nobel Prize for literature.

And there are still many in the town of 3,500 persons who remember that the "Main Street" of his famous novel became a symbol of provincial narrowness, ingrown smugness and false sophistication.

The years have healed many wounds. This year Sauk Centre observes the 75th anniversary of Lewis' birth, the 40th anniversary of the novel, "Main Street," and the 30th anniversary of the year Lewis became the first American to win the Nobel Prize for literature.

If Sauk Centre's Main Street was narrow, provincial and dull in 1920, today it is bright with signs advertising the Main Music Co., the Main Street Cafe, the Main Street Chevrolet Co., the Main Street Theater, a dairy which calls its butter "the pride of Main Street."

The high school athletic teams seek glory under the nickname, "The Main Streeters." Finally, there is Sinclair Lewis Peak.

The anniversary of Lewis' birth (1885) already has been commemorated. Pageants based on the novelist's life are scheduled for the summer. Funds are being raised to buy the Lewis family home for a museum. Plans are underway for the premier showing of the film, "Elmer Gantry," based on another Lewis novel.

The City Council, anticipating summer tourists, has renamed Main Street, "The Original Main Street." Third Street, where Lewis was born, is now, "Sinclair Lewis Avenue."

Ben DuBois, secretary of the Independent Bankers Assn., grew up next door to Lewis.

"My first memory of Harry (Lewis' real first name) Lewis is when we were 4 or 5 years old and our parents were visiting the Lewis's," Dubois said. "We were put out on the lawn to play.

"Harry looked at me and said, 'I can eat grass'—and he did. He gnawed off about a foot square, and I knew then he was destined for great things."

Lewis sometimes romanticized the town. Shortly after receiving the Nobel Prize in 1930 he said that "Sauk Centre always smelled of wild roses."

But when he returned to Minnesota to live during World War II he once derisively remarked: "How a Sauk Centre can be the center of the universe. . ."

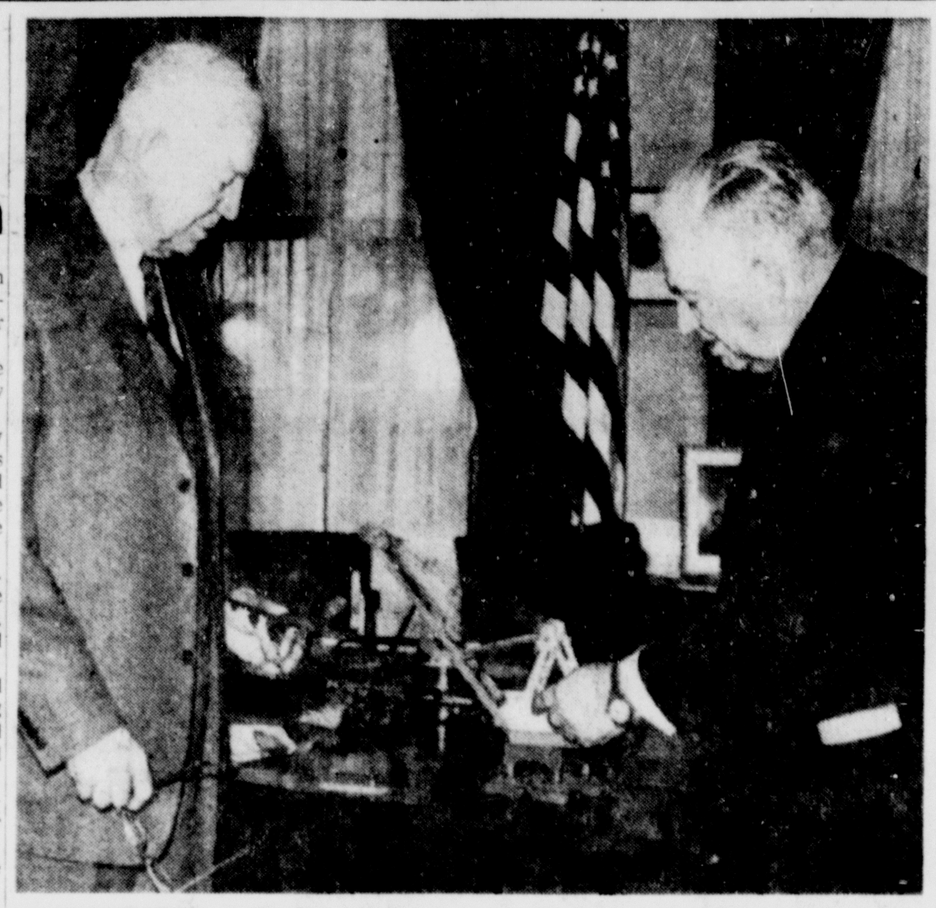
But his ashes were buried in the town's Greenwood Cemetery. A tombstone bears the epitaph:

"Sinclair Lewis, 1885-1951, author of 'Main Street'."

SPENDING TO PASS BILLION

DAMASCUS, United Arab Republic (UPI) — The overall development plan for the Syrian region of the United Arab Republic will require an investment of $1,250,000,000 during the next ten years, according to officials here.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser held several meetings with the Syrian Region Executive Council to discuss the plan. The plan calls for agriculture to get 34 per cent of the investment, industry 21 per cent, housing 12 per cent, public services 18 per cent, other sectors 15 per cent.



DEMONSTRATION — President Eisenhower gets a White House demonstration of a model of a mammoth coal stripping shovel presented to him by the National Coal Association. Operating the machine, model of one under construction in South Milwaukee, is F. Stillman Elfred, association board chairman of St. Louis. Highest-Voltage Power Line To Be Built In W.Va.

ROANOKE, Va. (UPI)—American Electric Power Service Corp. and Westinghouse Electric Corp. have announced they will build a 750,000 volt test transmission line at Apple Grove, W. Va.

The Apple Grove site, 27 miles from Huntington, W. Va., is owned by Appalachian Power Co., a subsidiary of American Electric Power.

The firms said the project is designed to determine the feasibility of transmitting large blocks of power at high voltages.

Electric utilities in the nation now operate transmission systems at a maximum of 245,000 volts. Previous experimental lines have been operated in the country at a maximum of 500,000 volts.

The firms said an increased demand for electricity makes it necessary to develop the means to deliver such large blocks of power from generating plants to industrial and residential centers.

The 750,000 volt line will be energized late this year or early in 1961.

EGYPT TO SHIP FLOWERS

CAIRO (UPI) — Egypt hopes to export flowers to Europe during the winter months. Dr. Hassan Baghdadi, Egyptian region agrarian reform minister, said hopes are that exports will reach $700,000 a year after exporting begins in December.

Receives Fire Certificates

Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming receives a certificate from Robert C. Byrus, chief of the Fire Service Extension of the University of Maryland, which contains the names of 57 city firemen who completed the Basic Firemen's course of the U. of Md. They are flanked by Chief Virgil Parker, left, and Assistant Chief Robert C. Long, instructor for the course. Mr. Fleming later distributed completion cards to the men and officers who took the course. All but two made passing marks. The ceremony, held in front of Central Fire Station Monday, was attended by over 40 firemen.

Mayo To Be Main Speaker At Miners' Program Today

CLARKSBURG, W. Va. (UPI)—The new international president of the United Mine Workers union will speak here Friday.

W. A. (Tony) Boyle will deliver an address at the annual observance of northern West Virginia miners of the advent of the eight-hour day in the mines.

All four Democratic candidates for governor — W. W. Barron, Harry R. Pauley, Orel J. Skeen and Hulett C. Smith — will appear at another program scheduled at Montgomery.

John Mayo, Cumberland, Md., president of UMW District 16, will be the principal speaker at Montgomery.

Formerly designated Mitchell Day in honor of the union's first president, the April 1 observance is held each year by miners to commemorate negotiation of the first contract calling for a 40-hour week in the mines.

Later, the observance was called Lewis Day in honor of John L. Lewis, UMW president emeritus who stepped down last fall. Lewis later negotiated contracts calling for less than a 40-hour week.

REMEMBER WHEN?

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Oldtime actress Anna May Wong staged a nostalgic reunion in Hollywood recently when she arrived for a role in "Portrait in Black."

Miss Wong met in the studio makeup department with Sir Laurence Olivier — appearing in another picture. They suddenly remembered they once co-starred on the London stage when Anna May was a top star and Olivier was just beginning his career.

Virginia City, Mont., Hard Up For Cash, But Refuses To Sell Famous Boot Hill

By PATRICIA SCOTT

VIRGINIA CITY, Mont. (UPI) — The town fathers of historic Virginia City have decided that even though this onetime territorial capital is hard up for cash it's not so poor it has to sell one of its several cemeteries.

Howard Rundel, who operates a museum in the Elks' Hall here during the short but gay tourist season brought up the subject. He asked city council for permission to buy Boot Hill cemetery. The proposed sale, he noted, would leave the town with several other graveyards.

Rundel said he didn't plan to charge curious tourists to see the final resting place of such early-day Montana badmen as Club Foot George — a road agent who plundered stage coaches carrying gold from the rich diggings in and around Virginia City.

The town fathers may have entertained thoughts of accepting Rundel's offer. But as Rundel talked on, he lost his cause.

The 1959 tourist season, the council knows more than anyone, was the worst in years. And tourism has been about Virginia City's only reason for lingering on since the gold played out.

The 1959 season started out well for this restored ghost town. But then the big Montana earthquake hit the area in August. Tourists ran from the Bale of Hay Saloon and the Wells Fargo Coffee Shop to pack their suitcases at the Fairweather Inn.

Rundel's plan was first to spruce up the cemetery and replace those almost illegible board slabs which the restless guns rated when they were committed to the earth.

He also hoped to build an observation platform high on the hill that overlooks Virginia City. The vantage point would be quite near the graves, he said. There postcards and other souvenirs would be available to the tourists.

At that point, the city fathers shouted a loud and unanimous "No."

"None of the city's cemeteries is for sale, even if we don't have funds for their upkeep," said Mayor L. A. Dudley Jr.

And all the cemeteries are on the hill where the dead keep a quiet watch on the little town below, which looks for all the world just like it did when they left it for the hill.

Businessmen Urged To 'Get Into' Politics

By WARREN FRANKLIN

NEW YORK (UPI) — The American businessman is being admonished that "politics is your business."

And historically, according to Donald G. Herzberg, executive director, Eagleton Institute of Politics, Rutgers University, it's about time, both for his own good and the welfare of the nation.

Herzberg actually is hopeful about the businessman's possible future contribution to the effectivness of our two-party system. But he is candidly disappointed over the lack of political acumen displayed by far too many present members of the species.

"The American businessman has been guilty of a chronic mistake," he said. "He has tended in general to equate his interest with the public interest."

This political nearsightedness plus an ingrained cynicism of the ultimate honesty and ends of politicians has in Herzberg's opinion led many businessmen to the pursuit of other community activities.

These feelings in turn have led Herzberg and William H. Baumer, special assistant to the president, Johnson and Johnson Co., to write a book, "Politics Is Your Business," in an attempt to do something to alleviate the situation.

Hertzberg is a Democrat, Baumer a Republican. The political balance was not premeditated for the writing and publication of the political handbook. It just happened that way.

Both advise the businessman that the best way to begin in politics is by getting your political feet wet.

"The best way to get started is to get started," Herzberg said. "Join a politica' club."

How to go about this is outlined in detail by the authors who firmly believe the U. S. businessman has a wealth of talent and special skills to contribute to the operation of the democratic system.

TO BECOME PRODUCER

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Actress Debbie Reynolds says she will soon become a producer.

Miss Reynolds says as soon as she completes, "The Pleasure of His Company" for Paramount, she will produce her own picture.

She said it probably will be "Champagne Complex" and will be started in the Fall. She says she is negotiating with a major studio for the production.

TAKING A SUNNY VIEW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Here's the latest version of carrying coals to Newcastle.

Before studio officials took their cast to the Virgin Islands for location filming of "Dinosarus," producer Jack H. Harris had all members spend two weeks under California sun lamps to develop a perfect tan.

Alaskan Census Expected To Be 'One Heck Of A Job'

By PAUL M. QUINN

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI)—Mrs. Betty Nelson, an attractive, personable mother of four children, packed her bags this week for what she describes as "one heck of a trip."

Mrs. Nelson, as one of the three supervisors for Alaska during the 1960 census, starts a head count today in a territory that stretches in length equal to the distance from the tip of Lake Michigan to Los Angeles. Her "trip" will take her, in a 25-day period, from the tip of Attu Island in the Aleutian chain to the Canadian border. Her territory covers roughly 200,000 square miles.

During the period of the census, Mrs. Nelson and her crew of 113 enumerators will visit remote trappers' cabins, die - hard gold miners, nomadic Eskimos and small groups of homesteaders, including the remaining Michigan "59'ers" who left their homes in that state and moved to Alaska to carve out a rough but new life.

All arrangements for the census in the largest state have been made. Bush pilots are ready to fly to more remote homesteads. Dog-sleds, kayaks, ferry boats and snowshoes are ready for the trips the head-counters will make.

The boats and kayaks will be used, according to Mrs. Nelson, when she and her staff start counting the 49th state's native population in the Aleutians. The dog sleds will be pressed into action in the interior of Alaska, and the bush pilots will spread out to areas too remote to be reached by other means of transportation.

An attempt to take the census in 1950 was not too successful because of the extremely rugged terrain, incident weather and lack of sufficient transportation.

But preparations for this year's census have been going on at full speed for more than three months.

"It's necessary for us to have a good census up here now that Alaska is a state," Mrs. Nelson said. "It's a big job and it's going to take a great deal of ingenuity and hard work. But, it's going to be done and done right."

In all, Alaska consists of roughly 586,000 square miles with a population of some 250,000 people.

GM Shareholders Pass 800,000 Mark

DETROIT (UPI)—General Motors Corp. announced Wednesday that the number of its shareholders has passed the 800,000 mark—with the roster representing every state of the Union, every province of Canada and some 80 foreign countries.

More than 58 per cent of the owners of GM common stock hold fewer than 100 shares while 79 per cent own fewer than 200 shares, the company said.

The number of GM shareholders reached 10,000 in 1919, or 11 years after the firm's incorporation; 100,000 in 1929; 400,000 in 1941 and 500,000 in 1955.

Ike Presented Model Of Huge Coal Stripper

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Two representatives of the soft coal industry Wednesday presented President Eisenhower with a model of a huge coal stripping shovel being built for a new western Kentucky mine.

Steven F. Dunnc, president of the National Coal Assn., and F. Stillman Elfred, chairman of the board of the association and of the Peabody Coal Co., called at the White House to make the presentation.

They said they told the President the federal government was their industry's biggest single customer and that the industry supported the administration's efforts to expand foreign markets for American coal.

The shovel, modeled after a giant machine said to weigh as much as a Navy cruiser, is being built for the Peabody Co. The shovel will be able to scoop up 173 tons in one bite.

World's Tallest Apartment Building To Be Started

CHICAGO (UPI) — The world's tallest apartment project — two 60-story circular towers — will go up on the north edge of Chicago's Loop within the next year-and-a-half.

The 896 apartment units each will have a penthouse effect because of the design and the fact that residential units won't be below the 20th floor.

Workers will break ground in May for the $36 million project, to be known as "Marina City." Apartment rentals will begin at $215 a month.

It will be the first downtown housing project in Chicago, the first circular apartment towers ever built and the first apartment building to include helical parking ramps, according to the sponsors. The spiral parking ramps, taking up the first 18 stories, will provide space for some 900 cars.

Marina City will be the second tallest landmark on Chicago's skyline.

The circular towers will rise more than 555-feet and be surrounded by curved balconies, one for every room on every floor, thus assuring the penthouse effect for each middle income dwelling.

The project also will include a 10-story commercial building, a skating rink, restaurant, dock space for 700 boats, a yacht club, motion picture theater, health club and bowling alley.

The AFL-CIO Building Service Employes International Union is sponsoring the project, which was designed by architect Bertrand Goldberg of Chicago.

Apartments will include efficiency units consisting of kitchen, bath and dressing room, as well as one and two-bedroom units. Each room will have its own electric pump system which will provide heat in winter and become an air conditioner in summer.

Apartment units in each tower will surround a 35-foot central core containing all utilities and mechanical equipment. Elevators will be situated in the core and open onto a hallway surrounding the core.

The apartments in turn will fan off the hallway and are so designed, Goldberg said, that "upon entering them one moves into fluid and expanding space. Everything moves from the center out to the balconies and beyond, like a growing tree or flower."

Chicago Has New Woman Weatherman

By JOYCE SCHULLER

CHICAGO (UPI) — People talk about the weatherman, but they haven't even come up with a word for a woman who recently became one in Chicago.

"Weatherwoman," "weatherlady" and "forecastress" are just a few of the names that have been tacked on Dorothy Davis. The government calls her a meteorological technician, which is one degree beneath a meteorologist, but carries the same duties.

Whatever she's called, most people find her hard to believe.

"I asked for a forecaster," they snarl, when she answers the telephone.

Politeness Counts

Miss Davis attributed her politeness with these callers to the natural sweetness of a woman. It's a little harder to take when people call to complain about the weather and hold her personally responsible, she said.

"But all weathermen run into that attitude," she said. "When I'm introduced as a weather forecaster, people gasp a little, then say, 'So you're responsible for that.'"

Miss Davis finds callers most surprised to hear a weatherwoman on the other phone at two a.m. She works any of the three shifts her male counterparts do.

Tapes Forecasts

Her duties include making local forecasts for each of Illinois' six weather zones, writing a motorists' forecast, the midwestern weather outlook and a nationwide weather summary. Occasionally, she makes a tape of a five-minute weather forecast for broadcast.

Miss Davis worked for the U.S. Weather Bureau here for 17 years before acquiring the necessary experience and education for her present job.

She feels certain now that the government would welcome more women in the field.

Library Is Best Place To Get History Lessons

(EDITOR'S NOTE: National Library Week is being observed April 3-9 with the theme, "Open Wonderful New Worlds — Wake Up and Read." Articles on books and reading are being distributed by various media in co-operation with the sponsoring National Book Committee, Inc. The following article on "How to Learn History," was written by Garrett Mattingly, author, lecturer and professor of European history at Columbia University.)

By GARRETT MATTINGLY

Distributed By United Press International

For a good many years now I have been giving lectures about history four times a week to groups of mostly graduate students. I often wonder why anybody comes. Even more often I wonder whether their coming has anything to do their wanting to learn about history.

It's not that I think I am much less competent than average. I even dare to wonder, now and then, why people keep on attending the lectures of my colleagues, many of whom are very competent indeed. On the whole, the history department I belong to has a good opinion of itself, but none of us, I am sure, believes for a moment that we play in the same league as the team across the way.

Across the way, on the silent shelves of the library, waiting to teach history to anyone who asks them, are all the best historians since history began from Herodotus to S. E. Morison.

Some Saw It Happen

There are the men who saw it happen and tell the story straight, like Joinville and Ernie Pyle. There are the diplomats, the wranglers, chattering endlessly in print about what they heard and said and did to make up for all those self-imposed spells of diplomatic silence.

There are propagandists of glory like Caesar with his tricky air of soldierly bluntness, and statesmen explaining what they tried to do, and why things didn't quite work out. There are speeches and letters and state papers, Oliver Cromwell's, Abraham Lincoln's, Winston Churchill's, which are the warm, living pulse of history, and there are the philosophic commentators, Hegel and Toynbee and the rest, eager to explain what everybody ought to think about it all.

Also, inconspicuous in the library is the best the local talent has to offer, droplets brought to the ocean of history, little handfuls of facts it has taken each of us a lifetime to gather, tiny phials of what we hope is wisdom, painfully distilled.

Use Persuasion

Of course we don't think of competing with the great team across the way. Our main job is to introduce them, to persuade our students that history is not a collection of neatly labeled facts, pat judgments and cant phrases but all that man remembers and guesses of his rich, infinitely modulated, many textured past, and that the clues to that past are mostly between the covers of books.

We try to teach students to stop listening and start reading. There is a story about one of the great teachers of my youth, Archibald Carey Coolidge is said to have begun one of his seminars by saying, "Gentlemen, I cannot teach you anything about history. But we have a magnificent library here. And you can go to that library and read, and read and read, and browse, and browse and browse." Whereupon one student who had crossed the continent to join that seminar arose indignantly and went down to South Station and bought himself a ticket home. He had not come 3,000 miles to be told to read.

I have always hoped, though, that if he was really interested in history and not just in getting some letters behind his name, he remembered that expensive bit of advice and came to realize that it was worth what it cost him.

Man, 106, Thinks He'd Make Good President

DAYTON, O. (UPI) — Andrew Jackson Jordan, who will celebrate his 106th birthday here Saturday, believes, among other things, that he would make a good president.

He also believes the younger generation is "just getting wild. They have lost all modesty."

Jordan, an ex-blacksmith and ex-farmer, admits to being lonesome sometimes, although he lives with a married daughter. "I get lonesome sometimes, and I wouldn't mind at all getting married again," he added wryly, "but it would have to be a young gal. Say somebody around 80. All I lack is finding her."

When asked who he will vote for in the coming presidential election, Jordan said, "Heck, if they want to do justice to the country, they's put me up and elect me. I'd make plenty of big changes."

Darling Shop Opens New Store Here

The Darling Shop, dealing in women's and children's apparel, will open for business in its new downtown quarters today, according to Mrs. Blanche Ridgway, manager.

The shop will be located across the street from its former location in the new two-story building that has been constructed on the northeast corner of Baltimore and Centre streets.

Mrs. Ridgway said all departments have been enlarged in the new store which has been designed in modern decor and scientifically planned for easier and more comfortable shopping. Pastel shades have been used in the decoration, and modern lighting installed to display merchandise to the greatest advantage.

The Darling Shop features a line of fashions for women, misses, juniors and teens, Mrs. Ridgway said, adding that a new children's department has been added offering fashions for both boys and girls.

Mrs. Ridgway, who has been connected with the Darling chain for 25 years, said the first shop here was opened in 1929 by Maxwell H. Gluck, who is still active in management of the chain, and who recently returned from his post as U.S. ambassador to Ceylon.

The grand opening today will feature prizes, including merchandise awards and both a girl's and a boy's bike. No purchase will be required to be eligible for the prizes.

Balloons will be given away to children at today's opening.

Also located in the new building is a branch of the Mary Jane Shoes firm, a subsidiary of John Irving Shoes Inc.

The store is being managed by Ora L. Patton, Charleston, W. Va., who said women's and children's shoes and bags are offered.

Celanese Plans Scholarships For Children

The Celanese Corporation of America has created new college scholarship opportunities for the benefit of children of its more than 13,000 employes in the United States.

The children of Amcelle employes in this area will be eligible for consideration in this program.

Under the program, Celanese will provide full, four-year merit scholarships to all employes' children who become finalists in the annual scholarship awards competition conducted by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

The amount of each Celanese-sponsored scholarship will be based on a formula that is designed to cover the total college costs of tuition, room, board, books, etc., minus the dollars available from the family and the child's summer employment. Those who receive the Celanese scholarships will be free to pick the college and undergraduate course of study of their liking.

The selection of Celanese children for the scholarships and the administration of Celanese scholarship payments will be handled by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation, a non-profit institution supported by private foundation grants.

As part of a continuing program of support of the nation's educational institutions, Celanese also will make supplemental grants to the general funds of colleges attended by Celanese scholarship holders.

Another facet of the corporation's aid-to-education program is the Celanese Fellowship Program that provides annual grants to support graduate research in the sciences and engineering at 11 universities and colleges.

Kiwanis Club Hears Talk By Leonard C. Neff

Leonard C. Neff Jr., recently appointed as industrial promotion director for the Cumberland Industrial Development Corporation, was the speaker at a luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club yesterday at Central YMCA.

Neff, who was assistant director of the Community Development Division of Kentucky's State Department of Economic Development, outlined some of the factors a company looks for when seeking locations for new plants.

Of prime importance to communities seeking to attract new industry, Neff said, is to have actual sites ready, or areas developed for industrial sites.

Textile Union Rejects Pact

The general membership of Celanese Local 1874, Textile Workers Union, Wednesday voted to reject the wage offer made by the Celanese Fibers Company during negotiations between the union and firm.

John G. Thomas, president of the local, said the vote was taken following presentation of a report of the negotiation committee. The negotiations were opened following a 60-day notice filed by the union on February 8 under the wage reopening clause of the existing contract, Thomas said.

The negotiating committee was instructed to inform the company of the action at Wednesday's meeting at the Union Hall, and report back to the union membership at meetings late next week.

Thomas said the meetings will be held at the Union Hall at 7:30 p. m. next Thursday, and at 10:30 a. m. on the following day. A strike vote will be taken if the company's newest offer is rejected at those meetings, he explained.

Local Legion Post Asks Action On Bishop Walsh

Fort Cumberland Post 13, American Legion, has forwarded a resolution to Secretary of State Christian A. Herter urging him to use every facility of his office to obtain the release of Bishop James E. Walsh.

Bishop Walsh, of Cumberland, was sentenced to 20 years in prison for what the Chinese Reds termed espionage. Bishop Walsh had been under arrest for over a year, and prior to that had been under house arrest in Shanghai.

The resolution of Fort Cumberland Post is as follows. Fred H. Anderson, commander, announced:

"We of Fort Cumberland Post 13, Department of Maryland the American Legion, were most disturbed at the recent news in regard to Bishop James E. Walsh. This is especially so in that Bishop Walsh is a native of our city.

"It is indeed tragic that in this advanced age of civilization that a dedicated religious leader should be falsely accused and condemned as a criminal when he is guilty of no greater crime than a continuous dedicated service to God and humanity.

"We join with thousands upon thousands of our countrymen in a hope and prayer that some means may be devised whereby the Communist Chinese Regime may be caused to rescind their action and release Bishop Walsh. We trust and plead that you will use every facility of your office to accomplish this."

Garrett Spent Over $81,000 On Snow Removal

From January 1 to March 15 it cost Garrett County $81,118 for snow removal. In addition it is estimated damage to county roads amounted to $72,500 above normal. The snow removal cost was about twice the normal figure.

Garrett used 1,055 bags of salt; trucks and plows were in operation 11,500 hours, graders 3,272 hours, bulldozers 825 hours, pick-up trucks 2,114 hours, loaders 723 hours, power shovels 21 hours and snowgo 467 hours.

The Garrett County Board of Commissioners met Tuesday with Gov. J. Millard Tawes to discuss if any emergency funds are available to alleviate the financial drain on the county.

Gov. Tawes referred the group to John B. Funk, chairman of the State Roads Commission and director of highways, for a possible solution to the problem.

Last weekend the board conferred with Rep. John R. Foley on the financial problem confronting the board due to heavy cost of snow removal this winter.

Rep. Foley was asked to contact U.S. Bureau of Public Roads officials to ascertain if some help could be given the county on road projects. Also consulted was Sen. J. Glenn Beall.

Garrett has had a total of 109 inches of snow this season. March snowfalls measured 33 inches.

BEFORE THE THAW—Just before warm temperatures and spring rains ruined the skiing at Marsh Mountain Ski Area in Garrett County this week, a photographer selected five young women at random for a picture, and learned later that all were: (1.) single, and (2.) physical education teachers in Maryland high schools. The girls are (from left) Dixie Lee Quinn, Greenbelt Junior High School; Judy Wilson, Broome Junior High, Rockville; Georgia Claxton, Glenn Ridge Junior High, Landover Hills; Joy Freundschuh, Glenn Ridge Junior High, and Tarun Comegys, Southern High, Oakland. Warm weather and rain have turned the snow into a mushy mess no good for skiing, but it was still 18 inches to three feet deep yesterday.

Census Workers To Begin Population Count Today

The 1960 Census of Population and Housing began last night with the enumeration of transients in hotels and motels, according to George R. Hughes Jr., supervisor for the district comprised of the four counties in Western Maryland.

The hotels, motels and other accommodations for transients were canvassed under a different procedure than will be used when the "nose count" begins today at all dwelling units, Hughes said.

The enumerators and four crew leaders for Allegany County and census takers and crew leader for Garrett County underwent training Monday, Tuesday and yesterday in the procedures to be followed while taking the nation's 18th decennial census.

Hughes said that after the individual report forms have been collected from last night's canvass, they will be screened to determine what names should be included in the local census counts. Names of transients will be allocated back to their usual place of residence, he explained.

The district supervisor said the count can be speeded up if residents have the advance report forms filled out and ready for the census takers. The forms, he continued, contain seven population and six housing questions which will be asked of all persons.

At every fourth household, Hughes said, the census taker will leave a household questionaire which contains additional questions covering population and housing characteristics. These are to be filled out and mailed within three days, he added.

Hughes emphasized that all information furnished to the Census Bureau is held in absolute confidence under federal law, and will be used only to provide summary figures such as totals, averages and percentages.

The census takers will be provided with red, white and blue lapel card for easy identification, Hughes said, adding that the enumerators will also be carrying easily-identified portfolios.

The T-night operation included all guests of hotes and motels with 50 or more rooms and a minimum daily charge of $1.25 or more.

If your room costs you less than $1.25 a night, the Census Bureau says you're in a flophouse and will be counted next month during a special canvass of tramps and hoboes.

Even if you're never contacted because you're away from home, you'll probably still be counted. One of the regular census questions, to be asked at every dwelling, involves members of the household who were away on April 1. All census information is reported as of April 1.

Women Work Hard And Long In China's Communes

(Jane Huckvale, Canadian newswoman, recently visited Red China with a group of tourists—all of whom traveled at their own expense. In the following dispatch she tells about her impressions of the life of women in that country.)

By JANE HUCKVALE

PEKING (UPI) — Few if any persons now living in the free world who lived in mainland China before 'liberation' have wished or been permitted to return, even as tourists. Thus, an honest comparison of the status of women 'before and after' is impossible. Certainly I cannot attempt such a contrast. I can only tell what I observed and what was told during my recent tour of the mainland.

Approximately four-fifths of China's women are peasants, living in communes. This means that families no longer own their own homes. It also means that there are no 'homes' in our sense of the term.

A Red Chinese peasant woman lives in a tiny room in a kind of barracks block; the new buildings are two-story structures which look like prisons and are hardly more cheerful inside than they are outside. The older ones are a series of long low huts, more varied in design than the new ones. All of these quarters are primitive by American-Canadian standards.

Share Common Bed

The mother of the family, her husband, and her children share a common bed. (It has no mattress, but the Chinese prefer it this way. It is built next to the wall and the family sleeps crosswise.) There is a minimum of furniture in the room and most clothing seems to be kept in boxes piled on top of one another.

Children are sent to the nursery, kindergarten or primary school during the day while their mother works on the land. She could be pumping a water wheel, dragging loads of stones, a cement-roller or a loaded cart; often she is harnessed like an animal with other women. She might be weeding, digging ditches or if she is in poor physical condition, growing too old to continue heavy labor, she might be put on kitchen fatigue.

Whatever her work, she is urged by the constant din of propaganda shouted over loudspeakers, waving of highly colored banners plastered on the walls of buildings, to work harder and still harder at her allotted task.

Divided In Teams

A commune leader explained to me that labor forces are divided in teams; the more the team produces, the greater is the food allowance for its individual members and their families. When food is in short supply, as it always seems to be in China, the mental and physical strain on the laboring mother must be severe.

I visited the 'July 1st' commune near Shanghai. It is no doubt a model one and it is tremendous. The population is in excess of 150,000 averaging about nine people per acre of arable land. It must produce not only the food for its own residents, but provide as well a large percentage of what it grows for urban consumption. At the 'July 1st' commune 62 per cent of the laboring force is female. Most men are either working in city industry, construction projects, or are training in the armed forces.

Thus the woman is driven to supreme effort. She competes with her sisters to extract an even higher yield from the land. The prize is more food, maybe a little money for herself and her children. Many authoritative reports say the payments in money are becoming less frequent. The plan is that one day these enormous agricultural concentrations will be completely communalized, with money no longer necessary.

In the internal affairs of a commune, factory, or other enterprise in Red China, women have a vote just as the men do.

Although, to all intents and purposes there is only one party and no franchise such as we know it, there are factory and commune committees, chosen by workers or peasants as the case may be. In the choice of such committees, women have an equal vote with men, and many of them hold executive positions of this kind.

Not Enough Cloth

All clothing is rationed and in very short supply. This I discovered inadvertently when I tried to purchase a pair of what members of our party called 'ventilated' baby pants, which are still popular in China. There is not enough cloth for diapers. Thus many untrained babies go without any clothing at all in the summer, or wear a kind of sun suit split up the rear for convenience sake. This garment may not be purchased without a coupon.

Women in the cities still wear oriental trousers and loose jackets, but a great many of them are also clad in cheap Western-style cotton skirts and shirtwaists. They are very clean, but it must be a great effort, considering that a great deal of the washing is done in wooden tubs on the streets, the wash water dumped over the curbstone. In the summer the family washing is done every day, and lines of garments hang from every window.

Clothing not only is rationed, but very high-priced in comparison with wages. I did see some 'Western-style' woolen suits in a Peking shop window. They were of very inferior quality, poor workmanship, and quite beyond the budget of a Chinese worker-housewife, so I concluded that they must be for visitors only.

Cosmetics are considered a bourgeois evil, or perhaps the women don't care. There were a few on the counter of the 'Friendship Department Store' in Shanghai, but most faces are unadorned except with perspiration. Certainly no Chinese woman has to worry about her figure. Hard work and meager rations take care of that problem.

Industrial X-Ray Helps Cancer Patients

By WILLIAM F. TYREE

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Industrial X-ray equipment has been transformed into a medical blessing for cancer patients through the efforts of a small group of dedicated men.

Their efforts in the battle against cancer result from ingenious use of a two-million volt radiography machine which checks steel parts for aircraft and allied industries.

The industrial use of the gigantic machine — spotting of air pockets in steel castings for possible failure of welded joints — occurs during the night and on weekends behind a four-foot wall deep inside an obscure building in downtown Los Angeles.

But by day, a steady stream of hopeful cancer out-patients converge upon the building which is known as the Southern California Cancer Center.

The Southern California Cancer Center was incorporated as a charitable, scientific, non-profit California corporation in 1957 with the gift of a huge X-ray machine from the Donner Foundation of Philadelphia.

Basic purposes of the center are treatment of persons afflicted with cancer who are unable to pay the full costs of such care, and development of additional research facilities in California.

"We believe we are accomplishing great progress," said John Anson, a Massachusetts Institute of Technology scientist at the center.

"Through pin-pointing the powerful X-ray, we can frequently cut a ring of cancerous tissue from a patient — although we may not get it all."

Staff physicians explain that both the cancer and industrial X-ray work at the center are essentially a process of looking through either a person or a casting which might fail under great stress.

W.Va. Ex-Poet Laureate Blames Politics For Switch

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—West Virginia has just changed poet laureates and the one going out said it was done in the middle of the stream—political stream, that is.

Roy Lee Harmon, Beckley newspaperman, had been poet laureate since 1937 except for a hiatus (that's a poetic word meaning another political stream) when the late M.M. Neely was governor from 1941 to 1945.

Then came Gov. Underwood's surprise announcement Wednesday that he was replacing Harmon with Mrs. Vera Andrew Harvey of Huntington. Underwood is a Republican; Harmon a Democrat. Mrs. Harvey's political affiliation was not mentioned. She has a master's degree in English from Columbia and has been an instructor at Marshall College.

Harmon lost his job just after the announcement he was to write West Virginia publicity for the Democratic presidential campaign of Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota. Harmon is a five-term member of the House of Delegates and president of the West Virginia Poetry Society.

Harmon said:

"Mrs. Harvey is a talented poet and I like and respect her.

"However, with Gov. Underwood running for the U.S. Senate, it is quite obvious that he has injected politics into the arts, meaning poetry.

"I resigned when Underwood became governor and he didn't accept my resignation. So it was a little surprising to receive the notice now. However, I am not bitter. Both the governor and Mrs. Harvey have my blessings."

Catholic Church Making Gains Among Negroes

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A generation ago, Protestantism had a virtually unchallenged claim on the religious allegiance of America's Negroes. A Negro Catholic was a rarity.

That situation is changing rapidly.

A recent nationwide survey showed that the number of Negro Catholics has increased about 63 per cent in the past decade—from 380,000 in 1950 to 620,000 this year.

The survey was made by the Commission for Catholic Missions among Colored People and Indians, headed by Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York.

The commission reported that the Catholic apostolate among Negroes is being "conducted with zeal" and is continuing to "yield fruits that are impressive."

During the past 10 years, it said, nearly 100 new Catholic missions and 40 new Catholic schools have been established in predominantly Negro communities, mostly in the South.

Of the 240,000 Negroes added to Catholic rolls since 1950, 100,000 were converts. The rest were children of Catholic parents.

Despite the Catholic gains of recent years, the overwhelming majority of America's 17,500,000 Negroes still are Protestants. The largest number belong to Baptist or Methodist churches. There also is a substantial and growing number of Negro Episcopalians.

A relatively small number of American Negroes — mainly in New York, Detroit and Philadelphia — have enbraced the Moslem faith.

One factor in the growing appeal which the Catholic Church appears to have for Negroes may be the outspoken stand it has taken against segregation.

Foote Designs CARnival Banner

Theodore P. Foote, art supervisor for Allegany County Schools, has designed the official Cumberland Sports CARnival banner, according to Francis A. Kenney, chairman.

The banner depicts several sports cars approaching Cumberland through the Narrows and Cumberland Sports CARnival in large letters.

Officials said the design will be used in all official banners used to decorate stores and buildings in Cumberland.

The club made plans for future projects and decided to meet the last Tuesday of each month at Valley Road.

Air Force Enlistments Now Open

The Air Force has stepped up its enlistment program for young high school graduates, according to T/Sgt. Thomas R. Doda, newly assigned local recruiter.

Sgt. Doda stated that in order to meet this increased need for eligible young men recruiters will administer special testing at the Post Office Building between 8 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Saturday.

Any young men interested in enlisting now or immediately upon graduation from high school in June, should take these tests to determine individual qualifications and abilities, Sgt. Doda said.

Enlistees will take their basic training at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio, Texas, and will then enter either a formal training school in technical subjects or go directly to an Air Force installation for advanced training by skilled technicians.

Sgt. Doda said that during April there will be special openings for various career airmen, especially in the fields of electronics, administration and mechanics.

Typical Spring Sweeps Area

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—West Virginia experienced some typical spring weather Wednesday, including booming thunderstorms.

Several areas had thunderstorms, including brief but heavy rain. Other sections had intermittent showers. And all sectors had continued comfortable temperatures.

However, weather observers said it will be a bit cooler Thursday. High temperatures are expected to be in the 50s.

Huntington recorded Thursday's high temperature, 77 degrees. Wheeling and Parkersburg were close behind with 75s. Elkins was coolest at 61.

Most streams in the state were a good bit higher than usual but no flooding was expected. The rain held up until most of the snow of several wintry blasts had melted away.

In southwest Virginia, however, there was some minor flooding Wednesday as rain caused small streams to overflow onto some rural roads.

Area Telephone Damage By Storm Exceeds $75,000

MOOREFIELD — J. F. Spangler, district manager of the General Telephone Company at Romney, reported the severe February storm caused the worst break in outside plant facilities in the company's history. Spangler stated that 1,325 telephones were out of service. The heaviest damage was caused at Romney, Burlington, Moorefield, Wardensville, Capon Bridge and Levels in West Virginia and Gore, Virginia. He also said that all long distance lines were out for the 28 miles between Romney and Gore, Va.

Damage totaled $75,000 for broken poles and lines.

Spangler said both the local office crews and contract forces worked around the clock along with assistance from the Division and General offices in restoring service. He said all service will be restored in the very near future.

Area W.Va. Counties Gain In Automobiles

MOOREFIELD—Hardy County had registered 3,213 cars, trucks and trailers for fiscal 1959-60 according to a release from the West Virginia Chamber of Commerce. This compared with a total registration of 3,103 last year and represented a gain of 3.5 per cent.

Other counties in the area also showed gains in registration with Grant County increasing from 2,907 to 3,010, a gain of 3.5 per cent and Pendleton County showing an increase from 2,795 to 2,842, a gain of 1.7 per cent. Totals for the state showed a decrease of 1.2 per cent.

Steel Pattern For Federal Workers?

The Eisenhower administration is not being allowed to forget its part in last year's steel strike negotiations and the wage increases that emerged in the final settlement. The A.F.L.-C.I.O. Government Employes Council will say "me, too" on Monday at its national legislative conference in Washington.

The G.E.C. has launched an all-out campaign for a federal pay raise for some 550,000 postal workers and nearly 2,000,000 classified government employes. Its pay proposals, union officials say, are patterned on the steel strike settlement.

Congressional leaders and the "steel team" of Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell have been invited to attend the conference. After the speeches, some 4,000 delegates will descend on Capitol Hill to make personal pitches to their Congressmen.

Indications are that the postal workers, at least, will obtain some kind of increase, although less than the hike of up to 22 per cent proposed in one bill under consideration in the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee. At recent hearings the administration informed Congress that it sees "no justification" for boosting salaries of either classified or postal workers.

Complicating the federal pay question is the $500 million annual Post Office deficit, which the President wants to erase by increasing mail rates on first-class letters, post cards and air mail. The G.E.C. is trying to separate the wage and revenue issues, but has tacitly acknowledged the connection by going on record in favor of the recommended postal rate increase to help finance the $665 million a year cost of the proposed pay raise for the postal workers alone.

President Eisenhower in 1957 vetoed pay raise legislation for postal and other federal employes, partly because Congress had failed to approve compensating increases in postage rates. In 1958, Congress apparently had learned its lesson; it raised postage rates by about $550 million a year and the salaries of postal workers by $265 million annually.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Right To Know

Tovarish Nikita Sergeivich Khrushchev:

I see by the newspapers that you are in a quarrel with my colleague, Bill Hearst. You may imagine that he, in some manner, is my Boss because my articles appear in some newspapers owned by the Hearst Corporation. You believe that I must write what he wants me to and therefore that we have no freedom of the press.

One of your major difficulties is that you are too conservative, too inflexible. If you really wanted to know what a free press is, you should have tried to find out when you were here. Bill Hearst is a pretty good man, as editors and publishers go, but he has yet to tell a columnist what to write or what not to write. Only a fool would try to do that in this country.

For instance, my work is published in many newspapers daily. Some of these newspapers are Republican, Democratic or of no party. Some like what I write and some dislike what I write. Personally I do not know many of my editors.

Can you understand what I am saying to you?

Why do they publish what I write or what Drew Pearson or Joseph Alsop or Walter Lippmann writes? It is only because they believe that their readers have the right to read what we say. Obviously when a man such as any one of us has so many editors and publishers, he cannot please all of them or even most of them. Nor can they tell him what to say. What pleases one, may be hateful to another. So a writer is free as a bird to be wise or stupid, truthful or false, conceited or humble, honest or corrupt. In due course, the voice of the people will determine whether he should continue or not.

This is freedom of the press — part of it. You question whether anyone can write in the Hearst press what Bill Hearst does not like. To say nothing more about myself, I read much in the Hearst press that Bill Hearst does not like and much in the Scripps-Howard press that Roy Howard does not like and in other newspapers that I am sure the owners are not pleased with.

I hope you grasp what I am telling you. Back in the early days of the Revolution, in 1917 and 1918, I was an editor of the "Russian Daily News" in Petrograd. I attended the Constituent Assembly and as my memory of faces goes, I did not see you there. I saw Lenin, Trotzky, Zinoviev, Kollantai, Stalin and many others in the good old days of the Smolny. You must have been a young fellow then in the Ukraine. So the wheel of life turns—they are all dead now and you are on the top of the heap.

My little paper was anti-Bolshevik, even after Kerensky went to Gatchina. So one day, the Red Guards came along and closed the paper down. Nu, there was nothing to do. So, in due course, I was put on a train which ended its journey at Harbin.

It would have been better for Russia had my little newspaper not been shut down. You would have had real opposition and that is good for the soul. You know, as well as I do, that toward the end of his life, Stalin was suffocated by yeses. A man who can only hear the word, yes, must become unbalanced, because there must be some noes in life. That is why Stalin had to kill his colleagues.

In this country, we talk about the "right to know." In fact, at the moment there is quite a quarrel between the newspapers and the government about the "right to know." The newspapers ask, "Who are these temporarily important men in the government who say that they are entitled to determine what the people should or should not know about their government?"

On the other hand, many in the government, particularly the military personnel, would like to limit what the people should know because they are afraid that you will find out some secrets. You know that that is a stupid attitude. You have so many spies here and such able ones, that you find out most things pretty quickly.

Nu, be of good health and don't let your colleagues get you.

Faithfully yours,
GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Nuclear Test Accord: The Unspoken Reasons

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

It is well worth taking a look at the real reasons why President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Herter decided to go a long way to meet the Soviets, in the negotiations for a ban on nuclear tests.

These unspoken reasons begin with Secretary Herter's strong instinct that the continuous, competitive development of nuclear and other modern weapons is an automatically dangerous business.

This does not mean that the Secretary is not an advocate of a strong national defense. Far more than his predecessor, the late John Foster Dulles, Herter believes in the Churchillian rule, "arm to negotiate." But Herter also believes, very clearly, that human wisdom may not always be sufficient to control the situation, if the great powers go on piling more and more terrible instruments of destruction on the stocks of such instruments which they already possess.

Those who hold this belief may be skeptical of the fruitfulness of disarmament negotiations. Herter and the others like him would have to forget the whole history of the last half-century in order not to be skeptical.

They may also insist, as Herter insists, that any disarmament scheme must be fully controlled and inspected. But they still feel a moral compulsion to try to negotiate for disarmament.

They think the effort has to be made, however toilsome and hopeless it may seem, because they also suspect that if the world goes on as it has been going, the world may blow itself up by accident. And this suspicion that the world may end by blowing itself up by accident also affects the way they weigh negotiating risks.

In the present instance, for example, Secretary Herter was ready to risk agreement with the Soviets on a one-year moratorium on undetectable underground nuclear tests, because he thought the risk of such an uninspected moratorium was less than the risk of a rigid attitude.

The chief reason for this judgment, in turn, was the unanimous advice of the government Soviet experts, both in Moscow and in Washington. All of them advised that the negotiations for a ban on nuclear tests had now reached what the policy-makers call "the litmus paper stage."

In other words, the Soviets were expected to conclude that this country was not negotiating in good faith, if we rejected out of hand the Soviet proposal for an inspected treaty covering detectable tests, plus an agreement for a moratorium on tests that are as yet undetectable. This would have led to final break-down of the negotiations for nuclear test ban. And this, in turn, would have absorbed our effort to negotiate for general disarmament, before that effort could really get under way.

The "litmus paper" argument was strongly reinforced by a more general political argument. In brief, the Soviet experts think there are even deeper divisions of opinion in the Kremlin than in Washington, about such questions as the gain from disarmament versus the loss from an inspection system.

The Kremlin majority must plainly support, or at least tolerate, the relatively flexible policy of Nikita S. Khrushchev. But it is supposed that there is a Kremlin minority of orthodox Stalinists, who still want to return to the old ways of doing business, or rather of not doing business, with the West.

Curiously enough, one of the most important bits of factual evidence for the divided-Kremlin theory was brought back from Moscow by Secretary Herter's chief opponent in the recent intra-administration debate, Chairman John A. McCone of the Atomic Energy Commission. On a very high level indeed, McCone was told that the Soviet government was split between a majority genuinely desiring agreement with the West, and a minority wanting nothing of the sort. Many of the difficulties in the test ban talks at Geneva were even attributed to the fact that the Soviet negotiator, Semyon Tsarapkin, belonged to the hard-nosed minority.

If this is the situation in the Kremlin, the turning point that has just been passed was ultra-important. For the hard-nosed minority must be eager for proof that the United States has not been negotiating in good faith. If we had given them anything they could use as such proof, their "I told you so" 's would have been convincing, too. The hard-nosed minority would then have become a hard-nosed majority.

Such, at any rate, is the best crude summary that can be offered of the main reasons for the great decision that has now been taken. It is not a soft decision. It is simply a decision that refuses to rule out any hope whatever of a less dangerous world-of-the-future.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

SNOW — This may be hard for some to believe, but all that snow that drifted down on the East and Midwest was due to warmer-than-usual winter weather.

A meteorologist with the United States government explaines it this way. There was much less of the cold, dry Artic air out of Canada this winter, and the result was a movement upward of warm and much more moisture-laden air off the Gulf and the Atlantic.

As this wet air moved northeast across the country, it encountered colder temperatures and let go all that moisture in the form of snow.

Another thing, the usually high precipitation will have its effect in future years. It will tend to make the air heavier with moisture for some time to come, providing, in turn, more snow for several years to come.

PROGRESS—It can be happily reported that progress is being made in the war against obscure words in bureaucratic usage.

A former Fulbright professor of English is now teaching a course in a federal agency called "effective writing." His objective is to reduce government communications to the clarity and simplicity of everyday usage.

He's opposed to using "wise" as a suffix in such words as 'locationswise" and "administrationwise." He wants to return to using "pay" and "examine" instead of "peruse."

However, government isn't the only offender, he said. He gave the following horrible example from a private business letter:

"In order that these data may be disseminated to our satellite sales activities, it will be appreciated if we may be advised concerning the action required to obtain our estimated requirement of 25 copies of the above publication."

Wouldn't it have been simpler to write "Please send me 25 copies of your publication?"

Senator Hubert Humphrey Paying Penalty Of Being Right Too Soon

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Hubert Horatio Humphrey is the best living example of the sardonic fact that courage seldom pays off with people and politicians. History is littered with skeletons of dead heroes who stick their necks out for what was best for mankind and who are honored in death, not in life.

It is too early of course to judge the bestowed niche of Hubert Humphrey, but certainly in this campaign to pick a president he is paying the penalty of being right too soon.

Four years ago he took a stand against nuclear bomb testing, and stuck to the position to which Eisenhower has come around today. Seven years ago he formed a State Department committee to explore ways of halting the arms race—with proper inspection—exactly the position pushed by Eisenhower at Geneva today.

Twelve years ago at the Democratic convention he stood up before bitter southern delegates and demanded that the Democratic party "get out of the shadow of States Rights and walk forthrightly in the bright sunshine of human rights." That battle for civil rights has cost Humphrey the undying opposition of the south today. Yet Congress and the Eisenhower administration this month will write his several ideas into law.

Other Crusading "Firsts"

For seven years he has opposed Agriculture Secretary Benson's flexible price supports, a position to which his chief rival for the Democratic nomination, Sen. Jack Kennedy, has just come around in the last two years.

He proposed an "International Health Year" modeled after the International Geophysical Year and went to Moscow to get Khrushchev's support. He originated the idea of the "Great White Fleet" which was picked up by Life magazine and has resulted in a mercy ship now calling at southeast Asian ports with American doctors and nurses.

Humphrey began crusading for peace long before the Republicans adopted it as thier most successful campaign issue. He advocated a "Food for Peace" plan to feed hungry people with our surplus stocks. He has offered legislation to challenge the Soviet economic rivalry, revive the Civilian Conservation Corps, grant loans for college construction, and close tax loopholes.

Finally, he has been the consistent champion of labor, a devoted friend of Israel, a battler for religious tolerance, and the most articulate Senate spokesman for small business.

Yet with the exception of the farmers, none of these groups is really in Humphrey's corner. Though he risked fanning the flames of southern ire only last year by delivering the main address before the National Association of Colored People, there is no great rush of the Negro vote in his direction.

Though he has gone down the line for labor more consistently than any Senator save Wayne Morse of Oregon, the attitude of labor is best described by the remark of Joe DeSilva, potent head of the Los Angeles retail clerks: "This time we want a winner. Humphrey's all right, but he can't win."

Seldom Fires Blanks

Harry Truman and Adlai Stevenson reacted differently, but the net result was the same. When Senator Humphrey consulted them before he took the presidential plunge, Stevenson said he wouldn't seek the nomination, but wouldn't turn it down if offered. But he was not willing to release his long-time political supporters to work for Humphrey.

Truman told the Senator from Minnesota that he would support Symington as Missouri's favorite son, though he left open the possibility that he might change candidates in later balloting.

Only Mrs. Roosevelt, matriarch of the liberal Democrats, has been in Humphrey's corner. "Humphrey," she has said, "possesses the spark of greatness." However, with Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. now beating the Wisconsin bushes for Kennedy on the reported promise that he will be Secretary of the Navy in the Kennedy cabinet, even Mrs. Roosevelt recently has been silent.

If Hubert Humphrey ever got the nomination, politicoes admit that he would be a hurricane as a campaigner. Born over a drugstore of which he is still part owner, he is the only Democratic candidate who is not a millionaire.

Chief criticism of Humphrey is that he talks too much. This is true. And sometimes he gives the impression of shallowness because of his glibness. He talks in machine-gun bursts, yet seldom fire blanks. Even his enemies admit that he thinks as fast as he talks.

His small, boyish face, likely to pucker into unpresidential expressions, adds to the impression he is not profound. Yet he has an ability to electrify those he meets.

Humphrey's mind drives his 170 pounds at such a frenetic pace that he gives the appearance of perpetual motion. He tries to cram more activity into each day than his time will permit, often holding conferences as he hurries down the hall or dashes off to the airport. This is the man whose political fate will largely be decided in Wisconsin next week.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

The clinic was conducted every Saturday morning. At 10, the dark chill theatre was filled with doctors. They chatted and riffled through their notebooks. A woman assistant came onstage in woolen skirt and sensible shoes and announced: "Meinherren, Doctor Adler." The conversation ceased, and the whisper of many pages died.

A fat little man came onstage. He had no neck. He looked like a small egg on top of a larger one. The glasses were rimless. His name was Dr. Alfred Adler, physician, psychologist, former disciple of Sigmund Freud. Here in Vienna, where the serious study of the mind originated, Adler treated simple cases for the edification of German physicians.

The first case was the only interesting one of the day. It was a blonde boy. His hair hung in a straight slab over one eye. His expression was resentful, the little fists clenched and unclenched along the seams of his blue knickerbockers. The woman gave Dr. Adler the case history.

"Ah," the doctor said, reading, "he throws erasers at the teacher. The principal sends him home many times, but still he throws." He looked down at the boy. "You do this when the teacher's back is turned?" The boy looked at the stage floor.

"You will please answer?" the doctor said gently. There was no reply. "Are you afraid to look at me?" Adler said. The boy looked up at once. The word afraid was a challenge to him. "How old are you?" the doctor said. The boy made a circle with one shoe. "Ten," he said.

"Ten?" the doctor said, backing away. "You are little for ten, are you not?" The little blue eyes pinned the doctor with venom. "Tell me," the doctor said, "you are little for ten, neh?" The little boy waited a long moment. Then he nodded and looked down at the stage.

"Look at me," the doctor said. "I am little for forty. The teacher does not understand you. I do. We who are little must prove that we are big. We go through life throwing erasers at teachers. Is this not so, Willi?" The eyes remained on the floor. There was a slight shrug.

"Come, Willi. Look up at me. What am I doing now?" The doctor slowly raised himself on his toes and let himself down. He did it again. "You know what I am doing?" The boy looked up. "Willi," the doctor said, "I am making myself bigger than I am."

The little boy almost smiled. He stifled it like a yawn in church. "Do you participate in sports, Willi?" The youngster began to show interest. "Of course you do. I will bet I can tell you which one is your favorite." The little body began to sag in relaxation.

"You play rugby. That's what you play." Willi's eyes opened very wide. "You play rugby because that is a rough sport. You must always prove that you are big. I do not know what position you play, Willi, but I can guess. You would be the goal tender, neh?"

Willi nodded slowly. "And why are you a goal tender? I will tell you. Because, no matter how rough the fight on the field, in the end the enemy must come to you. How else can you prove how big you are than by preventing a goal?" The boy was popeyed. Dr. Adler faced the patient and slowly raised himself on his toes and lowered himself again.

"I must be bigger than I am," he said. "I must prove it to everybody and I must prove it most of all to myself. I must play better than the big boys, I must fight better than the big boys, I must shout louder than the big boys and I must defy authority—like throwing erasers at my teacher. And this proves—" he raised himself on his heels again.

Dr. Adler called Willi's teacher onstage. He conversed with her in whispers. She nodded. When she left, she took Willi with her. All the way across the big stage, Willi kept glancing back at the doctor.

Almost a year later, the assistant in the sensible shoes wrote a postscript to the case. "Patient Willi returned to class. Behavior excellent. One remission. Teacher says it occurred after first three weeks. She was at blackboard, working mathematical problem. Eraser hit blackboard next to her head.

"She recalled doctor's instructions, said nothing, walked over to aisle where Willi sat, stood before him, raised herself on toes twice, resumed classwork. No problem since. . ."

Treatment Can Help Cross-Eyed Children

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Many infants have a wandering eye during the first few months of life. The two structures don't coordinate so that the baby looks cross-eyed at times. The majority learn to focus and, at 6 months of age, the two eyes move in unison like the front wheels of a car.

A persistent deviation after the sixth month needs investigation. Don't wait to see if the infant outgrows the defect (strabismus). The muscles may be paralyzed or a defect may exist in one or both eyes. There is a better possibility that the youngster's brain is having trouble fusing the two images. Some children master this trick sooner than others but if the condition is neglected, the tot soons learns to favor one eye over the other.

In time, the brain will refuse to recognize pictures sent to it by the lazy eye. This suppression by the brain helps the child to avoid seeing double—that is, one picture from each eye.

Blindness in one eye is temporary at first but if allowed to continue for many months, the brain becomes less and less responsive to the pictures from the crossed eye and finally ignores them completely. That eye becomes blind permanently unless used as nature intended.

Wearing a patch over the stronger eye and forcing the weak eye to do all the work is effective in some children. Others need glasses to correct the blurred picture being sent to the brain. This is potentially helpful to the 17 per cent who are farsighted. The prescription is made to pull the weaker eye into the proper alignment with the stronger eye so the two will work as a team.

Special exercises for the eye muscles (orthoptics) may be needed to teach the child to focus. Surgery is done as a last resort. It should not be delayed until after the child goes to school, as a cross-eyed child is sensitive about this obvious deformity. It is cruel to subject him to the jibes of his schoolmates.

TOMORROW: Poor TV viewing posture.

CURED DISK

Mrs. W. J. B. writes: I've had backaches for several years and every doctor I saw said it was psychosomatic. Finally, a specialist put me in the hospital for a myelogram, which showed a ruptured disk. He wants to operate but first I would like to know the chances of being cured of backache by this operation.

REPLY

Ninety per cent—if there are no legal complications. The percentage of cures drops considerably when the back problem is industrial or stems from an accident. In such instances, the desire for monetary compensation is so great that few get well until the case is settled.

TONGUE FUNGUS

W. L. S. writes: What is done for a fungus growth on the tongue?

REPLY

The number of fungi that may attack the tongue are almost as numerous as the birds in the sky. Each requires a different medicine. Thrush, for example, is caused by the monilia albicans, which is best treated with gentian violet along with proper diet to increase body resistance.

SPOT REDUCTION

R. P. writes: Is it true that the only reducing aspects of exercise is to push fat around from one part of the body to another?

REPLY

It is as difficult to push fat around the body as it is to remove fat from between the fibers of a steak by kneading or massaging it. Fat is anchored to the tissues and is removed by a complicated chemical process involving the use of energy. Exercise helps and fat may disappear if it is replaced by enlarged muscles.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Out in California, a husky six-foot athlete sued his tiny, Dresden china wife for divorce, charging cruelty. "Give me an example of her cruelty," challenged the skeptical judge. "Well, when I came home from work one evening," recalled the athlete, "I found a brown derby on the table."

"What's cruel about that?" asked the judge. "Your Honor," said the athlete, "I cannot live with a woman who wears a brown derby."

A foreman at a huge construction job collared a new workman and demanded, "How come you're only carrying four bricks when the others each carry eight?" "They're just plain lazy, I guess," shrugged the workman.

"They won't make two trips like I do."

A night club chanteuse confessed to her maid, "Gad, but I had a dull time with that false alarm from Washington. He took no for an answer!"

What with such gadgets as mechanical pitching devices and automatic batting machines, the old game of baseball, suggests the man at the next desk, may become a form of push-button warfare.

Market Handed Sharpest Setback In Three Weeks

NEW YORK (UPI) —The stock market suffered its fifth loss in a row and the sharpest setback in three weeks Thursday. The decline also wiped more than $1,700,000,000 from stock valuations.

Trading activity was up from the day before but still was considered light by brokers who expect investors to remain cautious until business gives a clearer picture of what it will do in the third and fourth quarters.

Some market analysts, however, feel that the current drift in stock prices represents another technical adjustment as the list attempts to form some sort of base from which to launch a spring rally worthy of the name.

The heaviest casualties today were Wednesday's biggest gainers. Polaroid toppled 14¾ to 213¾ to erase more than half of the 21-point rise of the past two sessions.

Industrials closed at 616.59 off 3.35 in their average and the lowest since March 18. The loss was the widest since March 10.

Du Pont fell 2 points to 224 and Union Carbide a point to 135½ to lead the industrial average lower. Other blue chip losers were Westinghouse, Swift & Co., International Harvester, American Tobacco, United Aircraft, Texaco and Eastman Kodak, all off around a point or more.

Rails also suffered their widest loss in the market's latest retionary phase, dropped 1.13 in their average to 143.74. Losses of a point in Nickel Plate and more than 1 in Illinois Central and Baltimore & Ohio helped pull the rails lower.

Wrecked Truck Scatters Beer

This beer truck, owned by Charles Shultz, overturned yesterday afternoon near Bowery Street, Frostburg, and scattered its load of beer along the highway and neighboring railroad right-of-way. Mr. Shultz said the wheels of the truck ran off the hard surface onto a soft shoulder and the vehicle upset. The truck was loaded with 300 cases of bottled beer, most of which skidded down the embankment and broke. Many helping hands were busy retrieving what was left of the load. The driver, Niles Sperry, was unhurt. He was en route to a beer warehouse nearby when the mishap occurred.

Gourmet Brunch Features Whole Wheat Flake Crepes

A gay brunch is a popular way to celebrate Easter Sunday or any festive springtime occasion. Brunch is a favorite meal for both the hostess and her guests. For the hostess it means more leisurely preparation than for breakfast but less preparation than for luncheon. For the guests it means time for an extra cat nap.

Whole Wheat Flake Crepes with a ham filling can be partially prepared ahead of time. The crepes can be made and filled, ready for the cheese sauce to be poured over them before the final heating in an electric skillet or chafing dish. This type of main dish fits especially well if brunch is to follow church.

To help tide your guests over these last few minutes before brunch is ready, serve chilled tomato juice or a vegetable juice cocktail with a cereal snack mix. To complete your springtime brunch, top off the meal with a fresh fruit salad garnished with mint. Keep plenty of hot coffee ready to refill the cups. Set the food on a buffet so that guests can serve themselves. Decorate the table with gay Easter eggs. If you are a skilled-enough artist, make them as caricatures of your guests.

Such a brunch has gourmet appeal with easy preparation for the hostess. The use of breakfast cereal as a recipe ingredient adds variety, flavor, and interest to foods and increases the protein, important B vitamins, essential mineral, and food energy values.

Ham Filled Whole Wheat Crepes

With Cheese Sauce

Crepes:

- ½ cup pancake mix
- 1 cup milk
- 1 egg, beaten
- 3 tablespoons fat, melted
- 1½ cups whole wheat flakes

Combine pancake mix, milk, egg, and fat. Stir just until batter is smooth. Fold in cereal. Pour thick and smooth. Add ham and by tablespoonfuls (about 3 tablespoonfuls per crepe) onto heated griddle. Cook until crepes are puffy, full of bubbles, and edges are dry. Turn; cook remaining side.

Sauce:

- ¼ cup all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 2 cups milk
- 1½ cups diced cooked ham
- ½ cup cooked diced celery
- 1 cup shredded Cheddar or Parmesan cheese

Melt butter or margarine over low heat; stir in flour, salt and pepper. Add milk all at once and cook, stirring constantly, until thick and smooth. Add ham and celery to 1 cup of sauce and cheese to remaining sauce and blend until cheese sauce is smooth. Spread a large spoonful of creamed ham through center of each whole wheat crepe, and roll up jelly-roll fashion. Place filled rolls in electric skillet or chafing dish. Pour cheese sauce over filed crepes, and heat through. Yield: 8 servings.

Confetti Cup Cakes

Spring is just around the corner and one of its first signs is the circus! Anxious spectators line the streets to wait the arrival of noisy parades, laughing clowns and prancing ponies all dressed up in colorful attire. The activity under the big top is also a favorite of all the "young at heart" as eyes and attention are constantly moving from tent top to center ring.

Confetti Cup Cakes will bring delight and gaiety into your kitchen, when they're the food surprise of the day. A package of your favorite cup cake mix is the handy servant on your shelf that stirs together in minutes. Since most of the ingredients are already measured for you, all you need to add is a little milk and an egg. After the kitchen clock says, "time's up" you'll be pleased to take these light and tender cakes from the oven—baked to perfection, every one. For variety in flavor and appearance, frost half the cakes with a chocolate frosting and the rest with a delicately tinted vanilla frosting. Select the trimmings of your choice for the added personal touch of your imagination.

Serve Confetti Cup Cakes for a snack, dessert or tuck some inside a lunch box for an unexpected treat. Their gay appearance and refreshing flavor will be a perfect way to usher in the first signs of spring!

Meatless Dish For Lent

Dairy foods are a natural when it comes to planning meatless main dishes for Lent. All types of cheeses both processed and natural with their individual flavors will add essential high quality protein to the diet as well as valuable vitamins and minerals. Cottage cheese is another dairy food that should not be overlooked for it is adaptable in salads, desserts, vegetable dishes and main dishes. Cottage cheese is a perfect meat substitute as well as being excellent in main dish salads.

Combination main dishes are usually easy and economical and Tuna-Broccoli Almondine is no exception. The richly flavored cream sauce enhances the food value of the broccoli and tuna to create a dish that will generously serve six for luncheon or supper.

Planned as an economical Lenten main dish, Tuna-Broccoli Almondine may be complimented with the following menu: molded fruit salad, creamy dressing, rolls, butter, cinnamon baked apple and milk.

Tuna-Broccoli Almondine

2 packages (10 oz. each) frozen, or 1¼ pounds fresh broccoli
2 cans (7 oz. each) tuna, drained and flaked
½ cup slivered almonds
¼ cup butter
¼ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
Dash of nutmeg
2 cups milk
1 tablespoon cooking sherry, optional
Paprika

Cook broccoli until tender; drain and arrange in buttered 1½ quart baking dish (10 x 6 x 1¾ inches). Spread tuna evenly over broccoli. Saute almonds in butter until lightly browned; remove from butter and drain on paper towels. Blend flour, salt, pepper and nutmeg into butter. Add milk and cook stirring constantly until sauce is smooth and thickened. Stir sherry into sauce and pour over tuna. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake in moderate oven, 350°, 25 minutes or until bubbly around edges. Sprinkle browned almonds over top just before serving. Makes 6 servings.

GLD LEMON TWIST

NEW YORK (UPI)—The lemon has an exotic past. In ancient China it was the LiMung and was celebrated as being "beneficial to women."

Chinese women not only used it as beauty aids in the form of balms and salves, but as essential ingredients in love potions.

3 maraschino cherries, cut in half
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
⅓ cup firmly packed brown sugar

1¾ teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
⅔ cup granulated sugar
2 eggs, well beaten

Gradually add dry ingredients stirring until mixed. Stir in melted shortening. Beat vigorously one minute or until creamy. Pour batter over prunes in prepared pan. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees) about 45 minutes. Remove from oven. Let set on cake rack about 2 minutes. Loosen edges and invert on serving plate. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar. Serve warm, cut in squares. Makes 9 servings.

A frank appeal to try a new product

With all the fine new products that appear in your supermarkets every day, it's no wonder you can't try all of them. Then again, it does give you a sort of comfortable feeling to buy the same brands all the time. They're old friends, and this is only right. Every manufacturer depends on your loyalty for his very existence.

But we've got what we modestly consider to be a rather wonderful new product, completely different in shape, form and convenience. We honestly believe that if you knew enough about it, you'd want to try it. So we'd like to tell you about it in a little more complete way than most ads usually do.

ALMOST EVERYONE HAS THOUGHT, at one time or another, how wonderful it would be if we could just fill our car's gas tank with water and drop a pill into it, instead of filling it with gas. Well, it's nowhere near as great a miracle, but we figured you'd think it was a pretty good idea if you could just drop a tablet into your washing machine to do the bleaching job . . . instead of buying and carrying that big, heavy bottle of bleach that can raise such havoc if it ever falls and shatters.

THROUGH THE GENIUS OF A CHEMIST who just didn't know when to give up, you can find just such a tablet in most supermarkets today. In a convenient box, so light you can lift it with your little finger, are a dozen pills, each roughly the size of a canada mint.

We call them Barcolene Bleach Tabs.

Each tab is sealed airtight in a plastic envelope that easily tears open with your fingertips. You drop the tab into the washer without even touching it. Instantly the tab fizzes into solution distributing its bleaching action throughout the wash.

AS TO HOW WELL IT WORKS, frankly, there is no problem in our industry for any manufacturer to compare his bleach with others. There are standard, scientifically controlled tests that everybody uses, and an electric eye gives reliable answers that even competitors won't dispute.

SO WE CAN TELL YOU — as a fact — that no other bleach, whether liquid or powder, will make your clothes whiter than Bleach Tabs. And there are some other important benefits to Bleach Tabs, too. For instance, it isn't commonly known that liquid (and powdered) bleaches lose their strength rapidly once they've been opened and exposed to air. But Bleach Tabs keep indefinitely, both because they're in tablet form and because they're sealed airtight.

ANOTHER IMPORTANT THING is that you can't make a mistake with Bleach Tabs, and ruin a piece of clothing that might cost twenty to a hundred times as much as a bottle of bleach. With the proper amount of bleach already pre-measured, Bleach Tabs are completely safe. You could drop a whole box of them into your wash without hurting a single piece of even the most delicate synthetic fabrics.

AS TO PRICE, Bleach Tabs cost no more to use than the well known brands of liquid bleach. That little box does about as many washes as three quarts of liquid.

WE THINK TODAY'S SHOPPERS WANT the kind of convenience and progress that Bleach Tabs represent. We publish this ad because we feel that if you know all the facts, you'll want to try Bleach Tabs, too. So far, the thousands of women who have tried them have been enthusiastic about Bleach Tabs and most of them have become regular users. This, we feel, is the ultimate compliment that can be earned by a new product in America today. We'll continue to do all we can to deserve that loyalty. We hope you'll try Bleach Tabs and that we'll be able to welcome you to the group of regular users who are already enjoying these built-in advantages and conveniences.

Add Meaning To Meals

Lent is a time when homemakers can express the family's faith through food. While the tradition of fasting predates the first Easter and has varied widely through the centuries, faith and food have always been closely linked.

Lent can take on deeper meaning through appreciation of the relationship of this season's foods to those of Biblical times. The Bible often refers to foods, particularly bread and fish. These are mentioned in the story of Christ when he came to the aid of his disciples fishing on the sea of Galilee.

These foods became symbols—fish the symbol of Christianity and bread meant all food. Bread was life. A third common food was cheese. In the Valley of the Cheese Makers, near Jerusalem, cheese was purchased either as a product similar to yogurt or as a dry curd to be made into a drink with addition of water.

The fishes of the seas, broiled or salted, and the hearth-baked breads are heritages from this past. The Old Testament speaks of raised bread to which dried fruits, honey, and spices were added to make a "sweet."

The simple fare of Galilean fishermen—and meat was a rarity then—can inspire appreciation of this season. Here are Proven Recipes with delightful ways to serve the traditional Lenten fish, bread, and cheese.

Lemon Tuna Bake

1 quart (½-inch), toasted bread cubes
½ cup butter or margarine, melted
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon sage
1½ cups milk
1 cup chopped celery
2 cups drained, flaked tuna or 2 (7-ounce) cans water pack tuna
¼ cup lemon juice
1 pint soft bread crumbs
¼ cup chopped pimiento

Place toasted bread cubes in a greased (1½ quart) baking dish. Melt ¼ cup butter in a 2 quart saucepan; add onion and saute until tender. Blend in flour, salt, pepper and sage. Add milk and cook until thick, stirring constantly. Add celery and tuna and gradually stir in lemon juice. Pour tuna and celery sauce over toasted bread cubes in baking dish. Combine bread crumbs, pimiento and ¼ cup melted butter. Sprinkle bread crumb mixture over top of casserole. Bake in a moderate oven (375°F.) for 20 minutes. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

French Fried Cheese Pineapple Sandwich

1 (3-ounce) package cream cheese, softened
3 tablespoons drained, crushed pineapple
8 slices enriched bread
¾ cup sifted flour
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking powder
1 egg, separated
¾ cup milk

Pineapple Sauce:
½ cup pineapple juice
½ teaspoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon sugar
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg

Blend softened cream cheese and pineapple. Spread mixture over 4 slices of bread and top it with remaining 4 slices. Cut each sandwich diagonally twice to make 4 triangles. Sift flour, salt, and baking powder into a bowl. Drop egg yolk onto dry ingredients, then add milk. Beat with a rotary beater until batter is smooth. Beat egg white until stiff. Fold into batter. Dip triangular sandwiches into batter, one at a time, turning them to coat all sides. French fry sandwich in deep fat at a temperature of 375°F. Use basket to submerge sandwich. Serve hot with Pineapple Sauce.

Yield: 4 servings.

Mushroom-Cheese Casserole

1 quart (½-inch) soft bread cubes
½ cup sliced mushrooms
1 cup grated sharp cheese
½ cup chopped celery
2 tablespoons chopped onion
2 eggs, beaten
¾ teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups milk

Alternate layers of soft bread cubes, mushrooms, cheese, celery and onion in a greased (1-quart) casserole. Combine beaten eggs, mustard, salt, pepper and milk. Pour over bread in casserole. Bake in a slow oven (325°F.) for one hour.

Yield: 6 servings

Spring leather handbags tell a tall story. The tall bags are taller; the long ones, longer. The handbags seen at the spring preview by Leather Industries of America featured white, beige, bone and barley in smooth and grained leathers.

Americans, on the average, consume one pound of fish to 17 pounds of meat.

Ham And Canned Pears Harmony For Easter

A festive Easter meal is ready for the partaking and the highlight of this dinner is a handsome ham surrounded by tender-sweet, spiced canned pear halves. A creative touch such as the delicate spicing of Bartlett pear halves sets this spring meal apart from all others—makes it something special, a praise-winning treat. And to complete this April meal serve tender asparagus stalks, cauliflower, piping hot baked potatoes, toasted sticks of bread and spring sundaes.

Sugar Spiced Pears

1 No. 303 can Bartlett pear halves, drained
1 jar (1 lb.) spiced whole crab apples, drained
½ cup syrup, drained from pears
½ cup syrup, drained from crab apples
1 tablespoon vinegar

Combine syrup from pears and crab apples with vinegar. Heat to boiling; pour over pear halves. Let stand several hours or overnight. Drain and serve pears and crab apples as garnish for baked ham. Makes 6 servings.

Continental Pancake

1 tablespoon shortening
3 eggs
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
⅓ cup sifted all-purpose flour
½ cup milk
Butter
Lemon juice
Honey or sugar
Confectioner's sugar
Apple sauce or cranberry
(See below, Variations)

Place fat in deep skillet (10 to 12 - inch diameter), and place skillet in oven while ingredients are being mixed and oven is preheated to 450°F. Beat eggs and salt until light. Blend sugar and flour, add to egg mixture, and beat until batter is smooth. Add milk and beat thoroughly. Remove skillet from oven, and if necessary, spread melted shortening to cover bottom surface. Pour in all the batter. Return to oven and bake 15 minutes or until pancake is puffy, well-risen and brown. Surface should be irregular and pancake well-risen at the sides. Remove from oven. Dot surface with butter. Sprinkle with lemon juice and honey or sugar. Roll, or fold from opposite sides to center making three layers. Turn out on warm platter. Dust with confectioner's sugar. Serve promptly with choice of fruit as accompaniment. Fruit may be spread over pancake before rolling or folding. Makes 1 or 2 servings.

Variations: Omit butter, lemon juice and sugar. Place one of the following over the batter just before placing in oven.

Apple: 1 layer thinly sliced tart apple.

Bacon: 3 slices diced cooked bacon. Reduce salt to ¼ teaspoon.

Cheese: Chopped or grated Cheddar cheese.

Ham: ¼ cup finely diced, cooked ham. Reduce salt to ¼ teaspoon.

There are an estimated 499 million chickens in America. This comes to about three per person.

TRAPPER CLAIMS RECORD

CARRIZO SPRINGS, Tex. (UPI) — Government trapper Clarence Turner has come forth with his own claim to a new world record. Turner says he has killed 1,747 coyotes in the last eight months. The old record, he says, was 1,201 coyotes killed by trapper Luke Stillwell in 1951.

STEWART IS BUSY

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jimmy Stewart believes he is the busiest actor in Hollywood, even if not the richest.

Stewart left for Phoenix, Ariz., to star in "The Mountain Road" just one hour after he finished two weeks of active duty with the Air Force, in which he is a reservist. Before that he completed "The FBI Story" and "Anatomy of a Murder" with less than 48 hours between assignments.

Area Rejects Annexation By Moorefield

MOOREFIELD — In a spirited election, this week voters and property owners in the area proposed for annexation to the Town of Moorefield rejected the change in corporate limits by a vote of 134 to 100. Voters within the present corporate limits approved the change by a vote of 177 to 131.

The voters in the town cast ballots at the firemen's hall and the property owners and voters in the area proposed for annexation cast ballots at the Hardy County Public Library.

The measure failed to carry as the voters in town and in the area proposed for annexation had to approve by a majority vote. The total vote cast approved the measure but approval by both precincts was necessary.

Had the measure carried the Census Bureau had arranged to include the proposed area in the 1960 count and would have made Moorefield the largest incorporated town in the area.

Hardy County Woman Bitten By Rabid Fox

MOOREFIELD — Mrs. Arthur Sions in the Flats section was bitten by a fox Tuesday of last week. It is not known whether or not the animal was rabid, but from the actions of the fox it was presumed to be mad. Mrs. Sions is taking a series of Pasteur shots.

Several reports of foxes presumed to be rabid have been received in the county. Preston Kelley shot one under his house last week that was obviously sick and deranged.

Owners of dogs in the area are requested to watch them carefully for any signs of unusual behavior and if they are known to have been fighting with foxes to tie them up for two weeks. A two-week period is normally long enough to observe whether the symptoms of rabies appear.

County sportsmen as well as farmers are concerned when it is known that rabies is present in the county in foxes and skunks. Livestock is endangered and the rabid animals are a threat to the deer herd. A bounty of $1 is offered for any fox tail brought in this month or during the month of April, officials said.

Warden Lake To Be Stocked With Trout

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — A new 45-acre lake near Wardensville, Hardy County, will be stocked with trout before the new season opens April 30, but four miles of road leading to it have not been improved enough for travel.

Ed Kinney, the Conservation Department's fish chief, said lack of funds has prevented road improvement.

The lake will be drained the second or third week in May and undesirable fish will be removed from the stream above the dam. Small mouth bass then will be stocked in the impoundment, known as Warden Lake, in May or early June.

The stocking of about half million trout in various streams and impoundments throughout the state got under way last Monday and will continue through April, Kinney said.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN: I've suspected this for a long time but now that I have evidence I can't put off this letter any longer.

My mother is making a play for my husband. I am 24, Jim is 29. My mother was divorced 12 years ago and she's now 43. I admit she's beautiful, has a knockout figure, plenty of pep and can dance all night.

I have two small children and am pregnant again. In my present condition I'm no match for my mother. I began to get suspicious when I was in the hospital with my last baby. She had Jim to dinner every night and suggested he take her to some night spots. He refused, saying he didn't feel like whooping it up when his wife was in the hospital. He told me this in all innocence.

Last night we had a party here and Mother was slightly loaded. I was on the back porch getting some ice when I saw Jim in the kitchen getting glasses. Mother came up behind him, put her arms around his waist and kissed him on the back of the neck. I heard him say "You're drunk, Vera" and he led her into the room with the guests.

Please tell me what to do. I'm sick to my stomach. — BETH

DEAR BETH: Tell our husband at once that you witnessed the incident and let him know you trust him completely.

Ask him to tell your mother in no uncertain terms that she'd better find herself some unmarried friends because he's not available.

Stay out of it and depend on Jim to put an end to this unconscionable woman's revolting behavior.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The least you can do when you print a crazy letter which is signed with two people's names is to let the readers know what city the letter is from.

Recently you had a letter signed Dorothy and Jack and my phone rang for almost one solid week. My name happens to be Dorothy and my husband is Jack.

That letter had a few things in it that could have happened to us, but I'm happy to say my husband has cut down on his drinking and hasn't stepped out on me in five years.

I think your column does some good, but it does some harm, too. Our last name begins with a B—we live in Detroit and we are NOT the Dorothy and Jack who are having trouble. Thank you.—INNOCENT VICTIMS

DEAR INNOCENT: I am very happy that you're not having trouble, but if you ever do — please write and feel free to sign your correct names. When people ask me not to use their names, I always respect their wishes. You're welcome.

DEAR ANN: This has bothered me for a long time. Everyone takes his problems to Ann Landers so I'm doing the same.

When a person feels a sneeze coming on is he supposed to try to hold it back or what? I can sometimes hold back a sneeze by rubbing the bridge of my nose. It doesn't always work and then I'm embarrassed.

Is it unhealthy to hold back a sneeze? Please wise me up. — KA CHOO

DEAR KA CHOO: It is not impolite to sneeze in company if you turn your head and cover your nose and mouth with a handkerchief.

Stifling a sneeze is not unhealthy but it's sometimes uncomfortable. If you can't get to the hankie fast enough turn your head, excuse yourself — and gezundheit.

Are your parents too strict? You can benefit from the experiences of thousands of teen-agers if you read ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

PROGRESS REPLACES HORSE

SPERRY, Okla. (UPI) — Wink Creekpaum and his horse have been replaced by electronic gadgets.

Last October, Wink and his horse volunteered to swim into flooding Bird Creek and read the water level gauge. Now, the weather bureau has installed a telemark which gives the level by dialing a telephone.

ACTRESS GIVES OFF SPARKS

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Producer David Swift describes the star of his TV series "Poor Mr. Campbell," New York actress Mary Grace Canfield, as "the feminine Ned Sparks."

"At no time does Mary Grace smile," said Swift. "She's always dead-pan in the films."

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

How To Be A Harrassing Hostess

It's no trick to throw a rope of sympathetic advice to rescue a harrassed hostess from her plight. But the "harrassing" hostess is left to hang. Probably because she deserves to be. For the plight—and the sympathy—belong to the poor guest who finds himself a victim of her force-feeding.

"You'll break my heart if you don't ask for a second helping!" "You MUST try the anchovy-and-peanut-butter, I INSIST!" "Oh, come on, just ONE isn't going to hurt you."

To make demands upon a guests' digestion—and discretion—is one of the crudest and cruelest of social pressures. Many a guest is trapped in a dire personal dilemma. No mere whim of taste, his "no" may mean he must discipline himself in diet or drink for a a reason important to him. Still he cannot bear to insult his overanxious hostess who can gauge his "good time" only by the amount he consumes at her tables. What is he to do?

The harrassing hostess, it seems, would persist in badgering him into a public confession and apology. He must describe his overweight condition . . . explain his allergies. . . reveal his reaction to alcohol . . . define the precepts of his religion . . . in short, call embarrassing attention to restrictions that should concern no one but him. What is more, if his hostess is running true to form, she'll still feel insulted, resenting the cause of her faux pas.

It is not for the hostess to assume that a no-thank-you means her guest is beset with a problem. For instance, A.A. may simply mean anti-anchovy. She should assume only her primary responsibility — offering an attractive, flexible menu—and leave the rest to the guests.

When a guest knows his hostess well, and knows the gathering will be small, he should be able to inform her of his restrictions privately, in advance. A true hostess will appreciate this, wanting to please her guests more than herself.

But, when this is impossible. . . and when the gathering is large, a guest should be allowed to enjoy hospitality without being singled out as different or difficult to please.

Of course, if he enjoys being singled out, my sympathy reverts to the hostess. When he inflicts his restrictions on everyone around him, bewailing his envy and disappointment, filling his plate with pity, his cup with compliments on his "will power," he will discover his own lack of acceptance means fewer invitations to accept.

BUSY, BUSY, BUSY

WEATHERFORD, Okla. (UPI) —Jerry Garret and Jo Anna Hibler were named outstanding students at nearby Southwestern State College.

Asked if they planned a celebration they agreed, "It takes too much time and we're too busy," Members of the student senate elected them on the basis of their many activities.

LAUNDRIES CLEAN UP

CHICAGO (UPI) — Americans spend nine times as much for professional laundry service now as their grandparents did 50 years ago, according to the American Institute of Laundering. The per capita expenditure for laundry work is $9.75 a year today compared with $1.14 a half-century ago.

Television and Radio

by John Crosby

Fast Rising Gamin

Tammy Grimes is an elf on the rise and there aren't very many of those around. She is a gamin with a serious aspect who has many talents and a small but terribly devoted following that abruptly got much larger after her appearance on "Four For Tonight" not long ago.

Everyone else on "Four For Tonight"—Beatrice Lillie, Cyril Ritchard, Tony Randall — was much better known than Miss Grimes, who almost stole the show. Her appearance, the only live one on the show, caused such a stir she was signed to star on "Hollywood Sings" with Eddie Albert and Boris Karloff Sunday on NBC-TV (8-9 p. m. EST). Dore Schary also happened to be watching, which helped win her the leading role in "The Unsinkable Mrs. Brown" on Broadway next season.

"It was amazing working with Beatrice Lillie on that show," Miss Grimes reported the other day. "In no way can you figure out how she gets the effect she gets. Her whole comedy approach is completely unique. She makes anyone working with her an audience. You can't possibly play with her. You always end up watching."

As to playing on television, she admitted it was tough. "It is very difficult to do comedy without an audience. You only have one cold eye and a big essence of comedy is the reaction of the other person. The reaction of the other person is seldom seen on television and yet it is often this reaction, not the funny line itself, which is the big laugh.

Did she enjoy working on television? "I don't think television is as stimulating as the theater. It's different. It's more selective. But it doesn't have the excitement because you know you only have one chance to do it and the period of rehearsals is too short. You don't really have time to be sure."

Miss Grimes is difficult to pigeonhole. She's been described as an actress, a comedienne, a comedic artist, a personality—among other definitions. What did she consider herself?

She shrugged: "I haven't decided yet. But really, it depends on what you're playing. If you're in a comedy, you're a comedienne; if you're in a dramatic play, you're an actress; if you're singing . . . you're singing. Although I don't think you can play a straight part unless you're a good comedien because often you have to play against the qualities—the qualities of the part you're doing.

"For instance, if someone cries on the stage, it isn't as good as if he tries not to cry. It he tries not to cry, the audience will do it for him. If he cries, he's indulging himself, and the audience has nothing left to do. If you think you're funny, you're more often not funny."

Miss Grimes strikes the average observer as terribly English, almost more so than Bea Lillie. Actually, she's from Boston, which produces some types which are fearfully Anglo-Saxon. Asked if Boston was not an odd place for comediennes to come from, she said: "Not at all. I think New Englanders are very funny."

And what about her plans?

"I'd love to do a Western in western Europe. I'd love to do a movie in Europe. (She just signed for "The Unsinkable Mrs. Brown.") I did Marc Blitzstein's opera at the City Center. It was marvelous.

Walsh Hoping To Visit China To See Brother

WASHINGTON — William C. Walsh, brother of Bishop James E. Walsh, hopes to visit him sometime this year in the Shanghai cell where the Red Chinese are holding him under 20-year sentence as a "long-time U. S. spy."

Walsh yesterday confirmed that he would seek the advice and help of the State Department and the Maryknoll Fathers at Maryknoll, N.Y., in obtaining a passport to Red China.

Walsh, former attorney general of Maryland, and now an attorney in Cumberland and Baltimore, said he has not seen his brother since 1948 and has not heard from him since September 1958.

"Next Saturday I will be 70 and next April 30 he will be 69," Walsh said. "I only want to help my brother, not to hurt him."

Walsh said he had no idea of what a visit might accomplish.

"I just want to see him again," Walsh said, "I hope nobody raises objections."

The Walsh brothers grew up in Cumberland, two in a family of nine children and were very close all through school. William studied law and James became a priest.

"In 1918, my brother went to China as a Catholic missionary," Walsh said. "He used to come back every five years. His whole life was devoted to spreading Christianity in China."

Bishop Walsh returned to the United States in 1936 where he spent ten years at the Catholic Foreign Mission Society of America, better known as the Maryknoll fathers, as superior general before returning to China.

"A year ago last August, we received a letter from my brother which said the Chinese had offered to let him out of the country, but that he had declined," Walsh said.

"He thought it was his duty to stay with the people to whom he had devoted his life," Walsh concluded.

YMCA Approves New Health Unit

The Central YMCA Board of Directors last night voted unanimously to proceed immediately with the development of a new Health Service Department.

Harold D. Barber, who has been serving as chairman of the "Y" health club committee, submitted a report to the board which resulted in the favorable action. About 80 members already have been signed up for this new service and about 200 are expected by the time it goes into operation.

Mr. Barber said that the goal for completion of this work is June 1.

Four Dwelling Permits Issued

Building permits for four houses which the builders estimate will cost a total of $36,000 to construct have been issued by the Allegany County assessing department.

The most costly project is for the $12,000 brick veneer dwelling which William H. Rephan, RFD 3, Frostburg, plans to build in Election District 11. The house measures 62 by 28 feet including a garage. It will be built on Lot 56 of Centennial Hill Addition.

Harold Stouffer, Cresaptown, plans to build a $10,000 brick and frame dwelling, 26 by 46 feet in size, on Lots 51 and 52, U.S. Hay Street.

Carroll County

Commissioner Wilson took some of the visiting commissioners on a tour of the County Infirmary after lunch.

On the matter of library service, Carroll County reported spending $27,000 in the current budget. Frederick County does not have a county-wide library but that county does provide $15,000 a year for library service. Garrett County levies two cents on the tax rate for a library program which included a bookmobile and two permanent libraries.

Attending yesterday's meeting from Allegany County were Commissioners Rowan, Mason and Wilson, Leslie J. Clark, county attorney; Harry T. Skelly, county roads supervisor, and James G. Stevenson, clerk to the commissioners. Garrett County was represented by Commissioners Carl Schell, Elra Garletts and Fred B. Glotfelty; Paul DeWitt, assistant roads supervisor, and Mrs. Virginia Fizer, clerk to the commissioners.

Frederick County's representatives were Commissioner A. Ervin Renn, Donald A. Woods, county auditor, and C. Burton Connor Jr., clerk. Carroll County was represented by Commissioners Francis J. Crawford and Charles W. Saylor and George A. Greier, director of the Planning Commission.

Alfred H. Benna Honored For Work In Mathematics

Alfred H. Benna, former principal at Mt. Savage High School and mathematics teacher at Fort Hill, has been honored by the Council of Engineering and Architectural Societies, as well as the Washington Academy of Sciences.

Mr. Benna, now a math teacher at Newport Junior High School, Kensington, was one of 87 teachers of the greater Washington area as a nominee for a science and mathematics teacher citation.

Only one of every 300 teachers in the Washington metropolitan area received the honor.

Mr. Benna attended the all-day affair in Washington which included a symposium with such speakers as Dr. Thomas J. Killian, deputy chief and chief scientist, Office of Naval Research; Dr. Herbert Friedman, head of the Atmosphere and Astrophysics Division, Naval Research Laboratory; Capt. C. F. Gell, Navy Medical Corps; Prof. Paul A. Goettelman, head of the Department of Architecture, Catholic University; Dr. Hugh L. Dryden, deputy administrator, National Aeronautics and Space Administration, in addition to a group of other nationally known architects, engineers and scientists.

In addition to the presentations honoring the outstanding teachers in their respective fields, the program emphasized the need for greater emphasis on mathematics, the science of engineering and design in the field of space and the need for continued and increased medical study of these problems. It was noted at the conference that mathematics plays an important part in all these fields and the junior high and high school math teachers carry a great responsibility for the ground work for the country's future space scientists and other scientists of all fields.

Mrs. Burns Ends Service

Mrs. Christine Kammauf Burns retired yesterday as supervisor of the cafeteria of Cresaptown School after 17 years of service.

The faculty of the school honored Mrs. Burns yesterday afternoon and presented her with a gift.

Prior to becoming cafeteria supervisor at the school, Mrs. Burns was employed a short time in the same capacity at the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company cafeteria. For the past six years Mrs. Burns has served as cafeteria supervisor for the Kiwanis Club Sunshine Camp for deserving children.

Mrs. Burns has five children and resides with her son, Raymond, in Cresaptown.

Mrs. Bertha Whetzell will serve as acting supervisor until the end of the school term.

Air Force Board To Meet Monday On Elkins Crash

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Air Force investigating board probing the crash of a C45 cargo plane near Elkins, W. Va., will meet at nearby Bolling Air Force base Monday.

The crash of the plane March 25 claimed the lives of four persons—three men and a woman. The plane was en route from Florence, S.C., to Denver, Colo.

A Bolling spokesman said no report on the board's findings would be made public, since the accident involved a military plane and no civilian government agencies are participating in the investigation.

The plane went down near Elkins in a snowstorm after the pilot reported engine trouble and icing conditions.

Mexico Farms Road Project Discussed

The proposed Mexico Farms Road project was discussed yesterday afternoon in a supplementary meeting to the county commissioners' session at the Cumberland Country Club.

Southey Nottingham of the planning and programming division and Haines Felten of the right-of-way division of the State Roads Commission attended yesterday's meeting. Conferring with them were Harry T. Skelly, county roads supervisor; Leslie J. Clark, county attorney, and Alvin H. Wilson, vice president of the George F. Hazelwood Company, who is serving as consulting engineer for the county on this project.

Mr. Wilson showed the conferees preliminary plans on the project. It involves new roadway, a bridge over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks and a tunnel under the Western Maryland Railway tracks. Part of the Federal aid money the county expects to get in the new fiscal year will be spent on this project.

Union Opposes Senate Move

John G. Thomas, president of Celanese Local 1874, Textile Workers Union, last night said a telegram has been sent to Senators J. Glenn Beall and John Marshall Butler protesting further action by the McClellan Select Committee.

Text of the telegram sent to the senators was:

"Members and officers of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, AFL-CIO, most disturbed to learn that U.S. Senate is considering giving the McClellan Select Committee more money and a new lease on life. The McClellan Committee has done its job. To put it back in business now would be regarded by the rank and file workers as a completely unjustified new attack on organized labor. Those unions whose records have never been questioned deeply resent this move and we request and urge that you vote against Resolution 294."

Scouts Learn First Aid

Some 150 Boy Scouts representing eight units completed a first aid course this week conducted by Nemacolin Trail District at the parish hall of SS. Peter and Paul Catholic Church.

Troop 10, LaVale Methodist Church, was awarded a troop first aid pouch for the top troop score and the Eagle Patrol of the same troop received the first place ribbon. Second place was awarded to Nighthawk patrol of Troop 9, Cresaptown Methodist Church.

The Dunkers-St. Patrick's finale tonight is set for 8 o'clock.

Jacobs Finds 3,000th Winner Hard To Get

NEW YORK (UPI)—Hirsch Jacobs failed again Thursday to saddle his 3,000th winner at Aqueduct.

He came close twice when Hail to Reason finished second in the fifth race at Aqueduct and Sister Antoine, the horse which gave him No. 2,999 Tuesday, finished second in the sixth race.

Jacobs had entered horses in five races but he scratched Snow Crust from the first and Sid Old Boy from the seventh. No Teasing was out of the money in the third.

Not all so-called beavers are web-footed, flat-tailed, water-loving animals. The mountain-beavers, or sewellels, found in the mountains of Oregon, Washington and northern California, never go near the water, have neither webbed feet nor flat tails, and are no more given to felling trees, building dams or houses than are rabbits.

Ohio State Loses

DENVER (AP) — The NAIA small-college All-Stars chained All-America Jerry Lucas in the second half to shock the NCAA champion Ohio State Buckeyes 76-69 in the opening roundof the U.S. Olympic Basketball Trials Thursday night.

Giants Will Sponsor Salem In Rookie Loop

SANFORD, Fla. (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants disclosed Thursday they will sponsor the Salem, Va., Rebels in the all-rookie Appalachian league this season.

Jack Schwarz, secretary of the Giants' farm system, said the Rebels would replace the Hastings, Neb., team in the all-rookie Nebraska State League which folded after the 1959 season.

"We did not know if we would need a rookie team this year or not," Schwarz said, "but our scouts decided this spring we would need one, so we negotiated the deal with Salem."

The Giants' decision assures the Appalachian League of five teams for the 1960 season. Washington will back a team at Wytheville, Va., Baltimore will field a team at Bluefield, W. Va., Philadelphia will operate at Johnson City, Tenn., and the Chicago Cubs will sponsor Morristown, Tenn.

Salem, affiliated with the Pittsburgh Pirates last season, drew 36,000 for 29 home games, the best home attendance record in the league. The Pirates decided after the season not to field a rookie team this season.

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Vince Lucci of Trenton, N.J., moved into first place in the all-events division of the 57th American Bowling Congress Tournament Thursday with a nine-game total of 1,985.

The 47-year-old bowling equipment salesman contributed a 643 series as the Fairlanes team, Fairless Hills, Pa., took eighth place in the team event Wednesday night. He came back with 697 in the doubles and 645 in the singles Thursday.

The only other minor events standings change came as John Germann and Larry Cassern of Albany, N.Y., combined for 1,275 and tenth in doubles.

Akron Cagers Win Olympic Trial, 82-76

Goodyears Defeat Armed Forces Stars

DENVER (UPI) — Akron's retreaded Goodyear Wingfoots overwhelmed the Armed Forces All Stars, 82-76, with two-platoons of veteran AAU performers Thursday night to open the U.S. Olympic basketball trials at the Denver Coliseum.

Three other games were scheduled for Thursday night — NCAA champion Ohio State vs. NAIA (small college) All Stars; Phillips Oilers vs. NCAA university all stars, and the Peoria Cats vs. NCAA college all-stars.

Akron coach Hank Vaughn retreaded his national AAU runner-ups with five players from other teams in last week's AAU tournament at Denver.

Vaughn started his regular five of Phil Reigel, Chuck Slack, Stan Kernan, George Sawyers and 6-9 Jim Francis. But they fell behind the well-conditioned GI's, 13-20.

Vaughn called on his new men —Dick Boushka, Nick Revon and 7-3 Wade Halbrook, all of the Wichita Vickers, and Johnny Cox of the Cleveland Pipers and Roland Todd of the Seattle Buehan Bakers. They put Akron into a 37-28 lead, but it was trimmed to 40-38 at halftime.

Akron threatened to break the game open several times early in the second half, as Vaughn started his pickup team.

With 10 minutes left, Akron held a 61-52 margin and continued to increase it.

Adrian Smith of the Armed Forces was the game's high scorer with 21 points. Cox scored 15 for Akron, and Boushka had 14.

SPORTS SPUTTERINGS

By Walter L. Johns, Central Press Sports Editor

THOROUGHBRED racing set new records in attendance, pari-mutuel turnover, distribution of purses and revenue to state governments last year.

One of the reasons, of course, was the increase in the number of racing days.

Another is the continual war on the bookmaker, as it were, although kayoing this guy is a tough job.

Richard E. Gerstein

One of the leaders in the fight against the bookies is a 6'5", 220-pound ex-Pittsburgher, now state attorney for Dade county (Miami), Florida. He is Richard E. Gerstein, and he is continually battling the bookie and feels he is winning.

"A decade ago," he told us recently, "we had open bookmaking. Today, there is little of it here, and it's all of the sneak variety."

"The handle at our tracks," he continued, "and that includes our horse tracks, four dog tracks and two Jai-Alai frontons, is up and we believe it is because of our intensive and vigorous campaign to halt the bookies."

"We believe there's a change in public attitude, too, on racing, and we try to keep it as clean as we can. The tracks themselves have helped, too, and we believe the increase in play, with increased revenue to the state, is the result of our constant vigilance. We're very proud that we have had no recent instance of jockey dishonesty."

GERSTEIN'S office, in his efforts to stamp out the illegal operators, runs into many strange and unusual methods of operation and sometimes it's difficult to convince a court because of evidence, the law and the rights of individuals.

"One time," Gerstein said, "we got a tip that a guy was bookmaking in a hotel in Room 1. We got the court order to make the raid, and grabbed the bookie, but he wasn't in Room 1—that was just a code he used. The judge ruled that our legal right extended only to Room 1 and our efforts were in vain."

"The codes some bookies use today," Gerstein told us, "are becoming more complicated. We've picked up ingenious sending devices, like one attached to a girdle strapped around one fellow at the track. He was sending, by code, to a man two miles away, who, in turn, was sending the results to bookmakers.

"Our toughest case," he said, "involved an inflammable paper on which a bookie was making his records. When we made the raid, he quickly lit the paper and flushed it down the toilet. We even took that toilet apart to try to get our evidence."

Bobcats Open Track Season Next Thursday

Enter Shippensburg Triangular Affair

Frostburg State Teachers College will open its track and field schedule on April 7 in a triangular meet with Shippensburg Teachers and Mt. St. Mary's College at Shippensburg, Pa.

This is the first of six meets in which Coach Ken Babcock's thinclads will participate. Other meets on the schedule are as follows:

April 12 — Fairmont and Davis & Elkins, at Fairmont.

April 27 — Slippery Rock and Geneva at Slippery Rock, Pa.

May 6 — Towson State Teachers at Towson.

May 14 — Shepherd and Potomac State at Frostburg.

The track squad is the largest Frostburg State has had since the sport was introduced some six years ago.

Only two lettermen are on the squad, namely, Roy Sigler, holder of the school two mile record, and Jim Cave, shot putter and discus thrower.

The squad is largely freshmen and appears better balanced than in previous years. Ken DeHaven and Dick Tracy are expected to add strength to the middle and long distance events. Jerry Boccuto of Suitland, Leon Brumback and Jim Swauger will give the Bobcats better depth in the high jump. John Kreitzburg will carry the brunt of the hurdles and will also broad jump, as will Brumback and Sam Holliday. The latter also will run the sprints.

Dave Soppa from Oxen Hill, Glenn Davis from Allegany, Mike McLuckie from Beall, Bob Funk from Allegany and Nick Dormio will participate in the shot put and discus.

Tomorrow Frostburg State's thinclads will participate in a warm-up meet with West Virginia, Fairmont, West Liberty and Waynesburg at Morgantown. No scores will be kept at this meet.

Norm Siebern's Eyes Best At Plate Says His Skipper

Martin Keeps Reds In Laughing Mood

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press International

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Heard around the grrapefruit circuit:

One of baseball's biggest pitching names only a few seasons back now resorts to the spit ball as his best pitch...

Kansas City Manager Bob Elliott is in complete accord with Casey Stengel. Both claim Norm Siebern has the best eye at the plate of any American League hitter. Siebern is so choosy that the A's are trying to get him to take a cut at a bad ball now and then...

Cookie Lavagetto gets that old fire in his eye any time he hears third baseman Harmon Killebrew can't do a decent job on defense.

"One guy asked me where would Killebrew be without his bat," revealed the Washington manager. "I asked the same guy 'where would (Luis) Aparicio be without his legs?'"...

National Leaguers agree that the three pitchers with the poorest motion to first base are Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell of the Cardinals, Bob Rush of the Braves and Gene Conley of the Phillies...

Billy Martin of the Reds keeps his teammates laughing every minute.

"If you've got something lying on your stomach and you wanna throw up," he quips, "just watch me hit."

All clowning aside, though, Martin is hustling like all get-out in an effort to prove Cincinnati made the right move by getting him from Cleveland...

Bill Veeck of the White Sox still hasn't given up trying to snare Roy Sievers from the Senators.

"He's cutting his calls down, though, from three a week to two," says Senator President Calvin Griffith.

Griffith made the Reds a proposition for Sievers and Pedro Ramos during the winter. He'd give both up for outfielder Gus Bell and rookie infielders Elio Chacon and Chico Cardenas. Cincy said no soap...

Jerry Walker, Baltimore's poised and polished 21-year-old, says his favorite reading matter is the Bible. Tutored on the mound by coach Harry (The Cat) Brecheen, Walker hopes to become "one-half the pitcher Harry was." They claim he's on his way there already...

Hank Foiles of Kansas City insists little Roy Face of the Pirates is the easiest pitcher he ever caught...

American and National Leaguers both say the best fast ball they have seen this spring belongs to righthander Bob Gibson of the Cardinals.

Jones, Adkins Make Deaf Schools All-America Eleven

Romney Back Named Player Of The Year

Vance On Second Team; Trio Picked By Two Magazines

Larry Jones, kingsize halfback of the West Virginia School for the Deaf of Romney, topped the 24th annual All-America School for the Deaf Football Team by being named Player of the Year for 1959.

The 6-foot, 223 pound gridder from Dunbar, W. Va., and his teammate, Larry Adkins, of Huntington, 5-foot-8, 155 pound center, were named on the first All-America team selected by two magazines, The Silent Worker, official publication of the National Association of the Deaf, and The Frat, published by the National Fraternal Society of the Deaf.

The North Carolina School for the Deaf with an 8-1-0 record in 1959 repeated as national football champion of the deaf schools. Willard A. "Dub" Hord, who piloted the Bears of North Carolina, was named "Coach of the Year." Two of his players made the first All-America team.

Lions Lead In East

Last year Coach Donald Bullock's West Virginia eleven, which scored 225 points to 59 for the opposition, led the east with a 6-0-2 record to go undefeated for the second straight season. In 1958 the Lions posted an 8-0 record under Bullock. American School of Connecticut was second, Mt. Airy (Pa.) was third and Fanwood (N. Y.) was fourth.

The West Virginia school which has an unbeaten streak of 19 games and has not lost a game since October, 1957, tied Connecticut, 22-22 and Mt. Airy 0-0 last season. The Lions have shared the P.V.C. title with Keyser for the past two years.

Jones was picked as the "Player of the Year" from gridders of 27 deaf school teams that saw action from coast-to-coast last year.

Playing his last season for the Lions, Jones was easily one of the outstanding backs in the tri-state area. He set up 25 first downs rushing in gaining over 1,000 yards for the second year in a row. In 1958 he set a school record by gaining 1,094 yards rushing, and in 1959 he topped that with 1,136 yards, an average of 142 yards a game and 7.8 a carry. He probably would have added to this yardage if he had played a full four quarters in each game.

Gained 1,136 Rushing

The 1,136 yards was strictly yardage from scrimmage and did not include yardage he gained taking in passes and on kickoffs or punt returns. He ran one kickoff back 78 yards for a touchdown. In gaining 2,230 yards from scrimmage over the past two seasons, he averaged 8.5 yards a carry, scored 27 touchdowns and 14 extra points for a total of 178 points in 16 games, an average of 11.1 points per game.

Jones, who is 18 years old, was selected for the second year in succession on the first Potomac Valley Conference team and was placed on the second all-state eleven for Class A schools. In 1959, Jones was fourth in scoring nationally among deaf school players with 87 points to his credit.

Larry Adkins, also an 18-year-old senior at the Romney school, was rated as a first class center on the offensive and an outstanding defensive player. The P.V.C. recognized Larry and his abilities by making him the center on the All-Conference eleven.

Vance On Second Team

Moses Vance, 17-year-old junior end of the West Virginia team, who hails from Stiltner in Wayne county, was selected on the second All-American team by both The Silent Worker and The Frat. The 6-foot, 150 pounder, was described as being "an excellent defensive player as well as a very good end." He set up quite a few touchdowns by taking passes that moved his team to strategic positions. He scored two touchdowns and took six passes for extra points.

The Silent Worker devotes 8½ pages to its All-American selections for 1959 with Art Kruger's byline appearing on the story. The photos of Jones and Adkins appear among the 12 players selected for the first team.

Four Errors Sink Buccos In Eighth

ST.PETERSBURG, Fla., (UPI) —The two top teams in the Grapefruit League played a comedy of errors Thursday before the St. Louis Cardinals came from behind to beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 7-5.

The Cardinals now have won 12 games and lost five in exhibition play and the Pirates own an 11-6 record.

After Pittsburgh went ahead with a three-run sixth that resulted when Daryl Spencer missed a double - play grounder, the Pirates erred four times with two out in the Redbird eighth.

The Bucs held a 5-4 lead when Dick Gray grounded to third. First baseman Dick Stuart, taking the throw, pulled his foot off the bag too soon and pinch - runner Ellis Burton scored the tying run from second while Burton held the ball.

Owner Abe Saperstein of the Globetrotters will huddle with the 7-foot-3 star this weekend and it would be no surprise if Wilt becomes a permanent Globetrotter.

NBA Ring Ratings Shuffled After Three Champions Lose

Carlos Hernandez, And Ray Portilla Given Recognition

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — The defeat of three champions, two of them in non - title bouts, caused a major shuffling in the monthly National Boxing Association ring ratings announced on Thursday by President Anthony Maceroni.

Carlos Hernandez of Venezuela kayoed Moore in eight rounds at Caracas and as a result moved up as the No. 2 challenger to Moore's title behind Gracieux Lamperti of France. Ray Portilla of Houston, Tex., beat Brown on a TKO when the champion was forced to quit because of a rib injury. The victory earned Portilla, a virtual unknown, the No. 10 spot in the lightweight division.

Other newcomers to the top 10 of their respective divisions include Clarence Floyd (6) and Doug Jones (8) both of New York in the light-heavyweight division; Bert Somodio of The Philippines (3) in the junior welterweight division, and Kazuo Takayama of Japan (3) in the junior lightweight division.

Six Schools Hope To Open Baseball Season Today

Keyser PVC Champs Host Fort Ashby

Moorefield Visits Warriors; Potomac Visits Montgomery

Six tri-state area teams — two colleges and four high schools — are scheduled to open their baseball schedules today but soggy fields may cause some postponements on All Fool's Day.

Schools playing at home in this area will not know until this morning whether the fields will be fit for the games this afternoon.

Coach Frederick Tack Clark's Keyser High School Golden Tornado opens defense of its Potomac Valley Conference championship by playing the Fort Ashby High School Eagles at Keyser.

Moorefield High School's Yellowjackets with Jonathan Paugh at the helm is slated to do battle with Charles "Pete" Vance's Wardensville High School Warriors at the latter place in another P.V.C. contest.

Potomac State Returns

Potomac State College, inactive last year because of a budget cut, returns to the baseball wars under the leadership of John Fox by meeting Montgomery Junior College at Takoma Park, Md.

Billy O. Wireman makes his debut as baseball mentor at Shepherd College as the Rams engage the D.C. Teachers at Washington, D.C. Wireman succeeded Cletus Lowe who stepped down as coach at Shepherdstown.

Keyser posted a 9-0 record in capturing the P.V.C. crown last season and will be opening a 10-game schedule today, all with conference oponents. The Clarkmen had a 10-1 overall record last year, losing the last game to Berkeley Springs, 2-1, in the Region 4 final. Fort Ashby was 1-8.

Moorefield won five and lost four in the P.V.C. in 1959 and was 5-5 overall after dropping a sectional game to Petersburg.

Potomac State starts its third season under John Fox whose teams have won 21, lost 11 and played one tie in two seasons. The Catamounts are scheduled to play 17 games, 10 at home and seven on the road.

Lowe Coached 19 Years

Shepherd turned in a 7-3 record in 1959—Lowe's 19th and final year as Rams' baseball mentor. Before coming to Shepherd Lowe was coach at Shepherdstown High for 11 seasons.

The weather this early in the season usually causes a lot of postponements but the teams are hopeful of getting started in spite of the fact that this is All Fools Day.

Riversun Wins With Russo Up

Tony Scores First Victory Of Season

LAUREL, Md., March 31 (AP) —Riversun, owned by Walte. E. Crismer of Baltimore, started his 1960 racing today with a driving victory in the $4,000 Executive Purse.

Riversun made up a loss of ground in the stretch to beat Tom M. Girdler's Harleigh to the finish wire by half a length. John Gibson's Sun Better was another length back.

Tony Russo, the veteran jockey from Brooklyn, N. Y., was also carried to his first victory of the Maryland season aboard the 4-year-old Riversun.

The winning $2 payoffs were $16.20, $7.60 and $5.40. Harleigh was $5 and $4 in the cashier windows and Sun Better $4.

John J. Mack's Cyprian Cat was made the favorite by the crowd of 9,375 and gave them a poor run for their money. He broke out of the starting gate and ran an eighth of a mile before being returned. He finished last in the field of six.

Phils And White Sox Play In Puerto Rico

CLEARWATER, Fla. (UPI) — Twenty-nine members of Philadelphia Phillies flew to Puerto Rico Thursday for a three-game exhibition series with the Chicago White Sox.

Two of the Phils making the trip—pitcher Billy Smith and outfielder Tony Curry — are still on the Buffalo roster, but may be added to the Phils' list before the season opener.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—Jerry Wald is in a new business, but it's so closely allied with motion pictures, I don't suppose we can really say it's different. He's bought a book "Get With It"—the manuscript that is—written by his friend McCauley, his collaborator from Warner Brothers days.

"I'm going to publish it for my own company—that's what I think of it," Jerry told me. "If it goes the way I think it will, I'll first present it on Broadway as a play."

Jerry said that Tony Randall had read the story and wants to do it. The story is a comedy about college life and politics.

I also heard from Jerry that Yves Montand doesn't have to be in Japan until May 18, and they'll start dubbing "Let's Make Love" as soon as the strike is over, and it looks now like the strike may end Thursday.

I happen to know that Buddy Adler has put in a very hefty bid for "Flower Drum Song," the wonderful Oscar Hammerstein-Richard Rodgers musical which had a sensational run in New York. I don't know if Mervyn Leroy knows this or not, (he leaves Thursday for Japan) but Buddy is bidding for this property for Mervyn, who makes good pictures. I saw "Flower Drum Song" in New York and loved every minute of it.

Mioshi Umeki and Pat Suzuki were the starts of the play. This seems to be the day for Oriental beauties. Never, since I can remember, have we had so many plays and so many motion pictures starring the beautiful girls of Chinese or Japanese origin.

Fred MacMurray told me that he had been one of the "holdouts" in accepting a TV series. "But," he said, "now I have decided to do 'My Three Sons' for Don Fedderson. I play a widower with three boys. Timmy Considine will probably play the 17-year-old, and Bill Frawley is a strong possibility of playing the one who helps me raise the boys."

Fred stopped in to see me and I congratulated him on the great job he did on the TV Guide show. He said this series is different. He didn't want any of the Westerns he was offered, but he was assured he would have three months off after he finishes "Three Sons." "I never want to be so tied up that June (Haver) and I can't take a trip," he said.

It was a cloudy day,—but spring was in full bloom when Anna Maria Alberghetti dropped in at Gogi Grant's dinner party with the devoted Claudio Guzman, TV director. When he left Anna Maria's side (just long enough to get her something to eat before she went on to her closing performance at the Cocoanut Grove), I asked my Italian girl friend:

"Does this mean marriage, Anna Maria?"

She answered: "I'll be 24 next month—and, well, I like Claudio better than any man I have ever known. However, I'll have to think awhile before I make up my mind to get married." We'll see, my little friend.

Charles Collingwood, who is at the Bel Air Hotel to sign up actors for "Person to Person" told me he's already made a home shot of Simone Signoret and Yves Montand. He's also signed Hugh O'Brian, Dana Andrews, Robert Ryan, Efrem Zimbalist and others.

What fascinated him most Charlie said, was that he has been able to get inside the Vatican and take pictures so the whole world can see this beautiful place in Italy. He is the first one to be able to film the Sistine Chapel.

W.Va. Liquor Prices Increase

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Liquor and wine price increases that were put into effect Thursday, actually won't effect customers until Friday.

West Virginia Liquor Commissioner Morris Shawkey noted Thursday the 1960 Legislature had authorized the increases, making them effective March 31.

However, Shawkey made them effective following the Thursday closing of liquor stores. Whisky will go up about 10-cents a bottle and wine 15-cents.

The increases are expected to bring in an additional $500,000 for the remainder of the current fiscal year and about $1,750,000 during the 1960-61 fiscal year, starting July 1.

Gibson Named Speaker

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI)—Milford L. Gibson, Elkins, former president of the West Virginia University Alumni Assn. will be principal speaker at the organization's annual luncheon here May 28, it was announced Wednesday.

Dr. Feiss Named

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Gov. Cecil H. Underwood Wednesday appointed Dr. Paul L. Feiss, Parkersburg, to the West Virginia Board of Dental Examiners, succeeding Dr. John Callaway, Beckley, who resigned.

Today's hand provides an interesting study to the prospective declarer on the subject of proper timing.

The three no trump contract was reached with dispatch and West, who had been patiently biding his time, doubled and led the queen of clubs. Declarer won with the king in dummy and observed that he could establish three sure tricks by driving out the ace of diamonds. He therefore led to the king of diamonds which West took at once and proceeded to establish his club suit. When declarer tried to get by with a spade trick West ran in with his ace and cashed his remaining clubs for a total of five tricks.

North found fault with partner's technique, contending that he should have attacked in spades rather than diamonds because with a spade break declarer could bring in enough tricks in that suit to fulfill the contract. North suggested, therefore, that South should have led over to the king of spades as soon as he won the opening lead.

North was leaning in the right direction but his advice to partner was not completely sound. To be sure, the spade suit should be attacked first. And proper handling of the suit will assure declarer of victory. The winning play is to enter his hand with a high heart and lead the six of spades. West, who surely has the ace is compelled to duck, for if he plays the ace at once, declarer will run four spade tricks, which with three hearts and two clubs accounts for nine tricks. When West plays low to the first spade lead, dummy holds the trick with the jack and the suit is now abandoned. The diamond is now driven out and declarer is home with his doubled contract.

Water Recedes More Rapidly; Damage Slight

Temperatures Vary Little During Day

The Potomac River began to drop slightly faster last night following another mild but somewhat cooler day. The forecast today is for continuing sunny weather, with a chance of thundershowers.

R. R. Golden, weather observer at Cumberland, said the water had dropped from its crest of 17.3 feet at 2:30 a.m. yesterday to 15.2 feet at 9 o'clock last night at the Wiley Ford river gauging station.

Mr. Golden said .32 inch of rain which fell during an early morning thundershower had little effect on the amount of water running downriver. He added that the water began to recede slowly after it crested, and at 4:30 p.m. it had dropped to 16.2 feet. It fell another foot in a little more than four hours and appeared to be dropping more rapidly last night.

Temperatures in Cumberland varied little during the day but were somewhat cooler than during the past few days. The high was 55 degrees and at 6 p.m. dipped to the low of 50 degrees.

Flood Control Works

The excitement of the rising water has died out, Mr. Golden said, as Cumberland's flood control works proved itself equal to the task once more.

Although the water crested above the previous flood stage there was little danger of flood in Cumberland. The river water went over the banks only in a few scattered low-lying places.

F. D. Glass, superintendent of Savage River dam, reported that the North Branch crested at Luke at 2:15 a.m. and the big gates of the dam were opened halfway. However, the level of the dam then was 35 feet below the spillway.

William Rannells, assistant district West Virginia State Road Commission engineer, said last night that all streams in nearby West Virginia were receding and that damage from the high waters is reasonably light.

Road Under Water

He reported, however, that Route 46 between Piedmont and Keyser is still under water and probably will remain so for another day or two. Water backing up from the North Branch closed the road about a mile from Keyser. The engineer said there is no culvert in the area to allow the water to drain. It is primarily a drainage problem there, he added, with the water escaping by seepage through the ground fill, a very slow process.

Mr. Rannells also reported a few minor rock and dirt slides on the mountain roads, but said the highways are not blocked or damaged.

The State Road Commission was primarily interested last night in saving the abutments and piers to the new Buzzard Fork bridge being constructed near Moorefield. Suspension forms were built to escape the high water and there was no damage, he said.

Secondary Route 3 between Milleson's Mill and Points, W. Va., remains under water, but U.S. Route 220 at Moorefield between the bridge and the town is clear, Mr. Rannells stated.

The South Branch got within 1½ feet of Route 220 at Petersburg Gap before the river began to fall yesterday.

Culvert Washed Out

Little Youghiogheny River in the Oakland area went out of its banks but caused little harm, and a large culvert on the Big Run Road, near the Savage River Dam, was washed out.

Throughout the tri-state area, however, reports indicated that the situation was returning to normal with very little damage noted.

Cumberland's city engineer, Charles R. Nuzum, said last night that the higher water gave him the opportunity to run a "wet" test on three pumping stations in the city's flood protection system.

Each of the seven pumps was operated about five minutes between 5 and 7 p.m. yesterday and Mr. Nuzum said all were operating steadily. Three of the pumps are on Howard Street, two at the viaduct and two in Ridgeley.

Mayor Charles H. Fryer of Ridgeley and several other officials of the West Virginia town were present for the test at Ridgeley.

The city engineer explained that the pumps are given a "dry" test periodically, but it is considered more significant to test the pumps when water is available.

Blood Bank Helped Many During Winter Months

"Operation Emergency" could have well been the title of the operation of the Allegany County blood bank during the past month.

Repeated emergency trips were made to Bedford, Pa., to pick up blood sent there from the Johnstown Regional Blood Center, with Red Cross motor corps ladies often making the trip in blinding snowstorms.

"All types of blood are scarce after a hard winter," according to Mrs. Sara G. Lindsay, executive secretary of the county Red Cross chapter, who appealed last night to new and veteran donors to be on hand at next Monday's blood collection at the Eagles Home, North Mechanic Street, between noon and 6 p. m., and at Tuesday's collection at the Frostburg American Legion home during the same hours.

The greatest emergency of the month involved O-negative type blood, which is always scarce, Mrs. Lindsay said. In this case a woman patient in a local hospital began to sink while on the operating table. She was given all of the O-negative blood available, and there was no time to get more from Johnstown. Her doctor rolled up his sleeve and gave a pint of blood on the spot, while hospital attaches got in touch with the Red Cross to contact local O-negative donors.

Then another emergency arose. Mrs. Jane Lohnas, chairman of the Red Cross recruitment committee and custodian of the donor lists, had been called out of town because of her mother's death.

So Mrs. Lindsay got a "baptism of blood" in her new job as chapter secretary. Racing against time and a woman's life—she went to the Red Cross office at 1:15 in the morning, found a list of donors, and began calling them.

"Typical of the everyday heroism of Red Cross blood donors," Mrs. Lindsay said, "these good people, called out of their beds, were at the hospital in a matter of minutes. The woman's life was saved, and she is reported to be improving steadily."

The actions of the dedicated motor corps drivers, the doctor, and the donors, sharing their health and strength to preserve life, are reminiscent, Mrs. Lindsay said, of the words of World War II General George ("Blood and Guts") Patton, who said:

"Not all heroes are dead. We just don't hear much about those who are alive."

Counsel Sees 'Holes' In C&P Rate Request

BALTIMORE (AP) — Rudolf A. Carrico, people's counsel for the Public Service Commission, said Thursday he believed "we can knock a lot of holes" in the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co.'s bid to have its base rate increased.

If the company should be granted by the PSC what it is asking for, it would mean a 10 per cent hike in customers' bills.

The PSC recessed its hearing Wednesday after hearing the company's case. It is scheduled to reopen the hearing on May 11 to permit Carrico to cross-examine company officials.

Carrico said one of the telephone company's officers had testified that stockholders should receive dividends of 75 per cent of net income.

"When they pay this high amount of dividends," Carrico said, "they are lining the pockets of the stockholders of AT&T."

The C&P is a wholly owned subsidiary of the American Telephone and Telegraph.

The company wants its rate base overhauled. Its officials said the current value of company property is $331,243,000, an increase of 14 per cent over the original cost. Its rates are based at least in part on its physical value.

Winter Holidays Shorten School Easter Vacation

You don't get anything for nothing.

Allegany County public school children will learn this lesson the hard way when the Easter vacation time comes around because two days have been chopped off the originally planned six-day Easter holiday.

Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster yesterday wrote all school principals in the county to tell them that there will be classes on Maundy Thursday, April 14, and on the Tuesday after Easter, April 19. The holiday originally was planned from the end of school Wednesday, April 13, until Wednesday morning, April 20.

When the school schedule was arranged last summer, Mr. Webster had figured on 181 school days, one more than the minimum state requirement of 180 school days. Heavy snow in late winter caused three weather-imposed holidays and Mr. Webster reminded children that two of the three will have to be made up to satisfy the 180 school day requirement.

The school term will end as originally planned on Friday, June 10. Had the two days been added in June they would have fallen during a week when some of the teachers would be required to attend summer school classes in which they have enrolled.

Board Names Chairmen For Realtor Week

James B. Reinhart and Bert J. Graham were named co-chairmen for the Realtor Week celebration of the Board of Realtors of Cumberland at last night's board meeting at the Fort Cumberland Hotel. Realtor Week will begin Sunday and extend to Saturday, April 9.

J. Henry Holzshu, board president, told the assembled Realtors that John J. Cronin, regional representative of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, will visit Cumberland, probably during May, to give advice and assistance on all kinds of real estate matters.

Mr. Holzshu also reported that progress is being made on the development of an FHA Certified Agency Program of low-cost loans for the Cumberland area. Final details are being worked out, he said, and there now seems to be every assurance that the FHA-CAP program will go into effect here in the very near future.

Mr. Reinhart reported that, along with Realtors Dennis Perrin and D. C. Goodfellow, he met with the Orphans Court to discuss the appointment of qualified Realtors as estate appraisers. The committee was well received, he said, and was assured that the court would consider Realtors in this capacity.

The court also requested a list of Realtors for this purpose, which has been supplied.

Also at last night's meeting were D. P. Goodfellow, J. Glenn Watson, J. Glenn Watson, Jr., M. D. Reinhart, Howard M. Spiker, Harry B. Simpson, John Workmeister, Edgar A. Kendall and Edward Wolfe.

The disabled machine is used to make passenger tire treads.

All other employes at the plant were on normal work schedules yesterday.

Cancer Unit Hopes To Up Contributions

Drive To Be Held During April

The 1960 Cancer Crusade will be conducted this month throughout Allegany County under the general chairmanship of Herman L. Meyers.

Goal of the campaign is to double the approximately $11,000 collected in last year's drive, and Mr. Myers said he and his staff of volunteer workers will make an all-out effort to realize the goal.

The County Cancer Chapter traditionally does not establish a set quota, but depends on the generosity of residents of the county to see that the work of the unit can be expanded, Mr. Myers pointed out.

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, chapter president, said plans are being pushed to complete worker lists for all phases of the campaign, including a house-to-house canvass which will be headed by Mrs. Robert K. Poling.

Chairmen Selected

Community chairman have been selected in most instances, Mrs. Roeder said, and these persons will select their own volunteers. However, individuals who have not been contacted and who wish to assist in the campaign can contact Mrs. Poling at PA 2-0105, or call the chapter headquarters at PA 2-2145.

The urgency for support of the Cancer Crusade is highlighted by the fact that the county chapter annually expends more than is collected in the campaigns, Mrs. Roeder said. She also points with pride to the fact that no cancer victim ever has been turned down in a request by aid.

The only requirement, she explained, is that the victim be diagnosed as a cancer patient by his physician.

The chapter provides the various services to an average of 16 patients a month, according to Mrs. Regina Cioni, executive secretary of the county chapter.

Services Available

Besides the services available at the chapter office, Mrs. Cioni said transportation, meals and lodging are provided for Allegany County out-patients who must go to Baltimore institutions for cancer treatments.

X-ray therapy and other treatments are available at Memorial Hospital here, while the chapter helps provide home nursing care in cooperation with the nursing staff of the Allegany County Health Department.

Rapid strides are being made in seeking a cure for cancer, Mrs. Roeder said, and those who contribute to the Crusade will help bring that victory closer to reality.

COLLEGE PARK—Cumberland high school girls heading for the University of Maryland this year might take a tip on college life from a Fort Hill graduate on top of the campus social and academic heap here.

Julie Kelly, 21, of 727 Maryland Avenue, whose list of honors jams her university record file, said Cumberland girls who plan to study at College Park should:

"Stay away from campus activities until after their freshman year. As soon as you can learn the studying ropes—which usually takes a year—you can start enjoying campus life."

Julie is getting a bachelor of science degree in personnel administration this June and will work in Baltimore.

Starting at the university in 1956, the blue-eyed coed was selected to be listed in Who's Who in Aemican Colleges and Universities."

C&P Allots Funds For Projects

The Chesapeake and Potomac has included funds for area improvements in the $7,000,000 which was approved this week by the directors of the firm.

An allotment of $68,000 was provided for additional dial equipment in the Oakland central office, and $48,000 for equipment to serve more customers in Frostburg.

The money for Frostburg will be used for additional toll circuits between Frostburg and Cumberland, and for additional equipment to serve Frostburg subscribers.

Oakland funds will be utilized for additional toll circuits and various kinds of central office equipment.

One of the biggest allocations was $700,000 for more cable, lines and equipment in Indian Head, Gaithersburg, Hyattsville, Silver Spring, Accokeek, Allentown and Brandywine.

The board's action brought the total authorized for improvements during the last 12 months to more than $58,000,000.

Of the latest authorization, $6,260,000 was approved for a great number of small projects in Maryland.

Leap Year Marriages Below Par

The stories about love and marriage in Leap Year must be exaggerated, judging from the marriage license record compiled in the office of Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court.

March, which ended yesterday, was the third successive month of 1960 in which fewer marriage licenses have been issued than in the corresponding period of 1959.

There were 159 marriage licenses issued last month or 15.9 per cent less than the 189 of March 1959.

In three months, the 1960 total is 459 or 19.5 per cent less than the 570 issued in the first quarter of 1959. Unseasonably cold and snowy weather in March probably deterred a number of Pennsylvanians from traveling to Cumberland to be married last month.

The monthly totals, with the 1959 total listed first in each case:

January—180 and 151; February—201 and 149, and March—189 and 159.

Auto Tags Still Are Available

New Maryland automobile license tags will continue to be available the year round at the office of Allegany County Tax Collector William B. Orndorff at the Court House but drivers who failed to get their tags by yesterday had better not drive on those old plates which expired at midnight.

Yesterday was the busiest yet since February 23 as Mr. Orndorff and his assistants sold some 1,387 sets of new tags. They got rid of the last of the GB series and started into the GC series. Some 19,285 sets of automobile tags were delivered to Mr. Orndorff's office and 18,100 sets, the heaviest business yet, had been sold when the office closed yesterday at 4 p.m.

Last night, Mr. Orndorff got about 30 phone calls at home from persons who wanted to know if the tags still are available at the Court House. He explained that they may be bought the year round but the old tags cannot be used.

Truck tags are being sold at his office beginning today.

TB Association Approves Funds, New Program

The board of directors of the Allegany - Garrett Tuberculosis Association this week approved the annual program and a budget of $16,404 for 1960-61.

The board also named three new members to board and appointed John Cobun to serve as secretary to replace Byron Kight who has resigned from the association.

Other officers of the association are Charles M. See, president; Glenn K. Davis, first vice president; Miss Mary Margaret Smith, second vice president; Joseph M. Naughton, treasurer, and Mr. Cobun, secretary.

The new board members are Rev. William J. Cox, Rabbi Bertram Cohen and William F. Williams III. Others on the board include Dr. Ralph W. Ballin, Mrs. Elizabeth Nave, Edgar M. Lewis, Dr. Thomas F. Lusby, H. W. McComas, William Wilson, Mrs. Margielea See, Mrs. Nelson Keyes, Mrs. Hazel Walters, Dr. Ton van Strien, Mrs. Jennie J. Grahame, Dr. Arthur Jones, James S. Getty, Francis A. Kenney and all officers.

Mrs. Dorothy McKenty will continue to serve as executive director, and Miss Gladys Frantz is stenographer for the association.

Last years' budget of $13,740.62 was spent on health education, clinics, case findings, rehabilitation, administration and seal sale.

The annual report for fiscal year of 1959-60 stated there were 19 newly reported cases of tuberculosis in Allegany County and nine deaths due to TB. In Garrett County there were two new cases of TB and no deaths were attributed to the disease.

Over 7,509 chest X-rays were taken in the two counties last year during September and October. Some 312 were seen at chest clinics conducted in the two counties.

Street Worker Seeks $10,000

Francis Tipping, Taylor Street, Frostburg, a street maintenance man for Frostburg, yesterday filed a $10,000 damage suit in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Mr. Tipping, through Attorneys Milton Gerson and John C. Sullivan, filed the action against Robert Ryan of Eckhart. He contended that he was struck by the defendant's car about 11:30 p.m. last December 27 while washing down the Main Street of Frostburg.

Also docketed yesterday was a $2,500 suit and its out-of-court settlement for $500. The suit was brought for Mary Ruth Mauck, an infant, by her mother and next friend, Alice Mauck Boyer, 19 South Lee Street, against Charles D. Shaffer and Margaret C. Shaffer, 419 Fayette Street.

The suit, filed by Attorney Earl E. Manges, states that the defendants placed a loaded rifle in a garbage can in front of their house. Michael Reinhart, an infant, while walking with Mary Ruth Mauck, removed the rifle from the garbage can. The declaration states that he did not know it was loaded and accidentally shot the girl in the right leg.

The $500 settlement was signed by Mr. Manges and William C. Walsh, as attorney for the defendants.

Carroll County To Entertain Commissioners

Roads, Cigarets Discussed Here

County commissioners from four of five Western Maryland counties discussed everything from roads to cigarets yesterday at the Cumberland Country Club and came away from their all-day meeting with an invitation to hold their next session in Carroll County probably in May.

Carroll County's commissioners yesterday attended their first meeting with the commissioners from Garrett, Allegany and Frederick counties and they appeared impressed by the advantages of a joint discussion of mutual problems. There was no explanation yesterday as to why Washington County failed to send a delegation to the twice-postponed meeting. It was originally planned March 3 and again on March 17, but both times snow resulted in postponement.

After their next meeting, probably in Westminster, the county seat of Carroll County, the commissioners are expected to meet in Garrett County, probably in August. Yesterday's day-long meeting was the fifth since the area commissioners began their periodic sessions at the Cumberland Country Club last July. Others have been held in Garrett, Washington and Frederick counties.

County Money For Roads

Carroll County's Commissioners informed the other delegations yesterday that it spends $111,000 of its real estate tax revenue, or eight cents on the tax rate, in its county road program. The total budget for county roads in Carroll County is about $700,000 a year.

Out of this road budget, the commissioners said, between 12 and 14 miles of 16-foot macadam road are laid each year at a cost of about $40,000 a mile.

Frederick and Allegany counties both reported their road budget is composed entirely of state motor vehicle and gasoline tax money. For instance, the $460,000 Allegany County road budget approved last week corresponded with the $460,000 which the state reported this county can expect in the year starting July 1 from motor vehicle and gasoline tax money.

Frederick County reports that it paves between 20 and 21 miles of county roads each year while Allegany County's goal has been about 10 miles in the fiscal year which ends June 30.

Collects On Cigarets

Garrett County is the only one of the five Western Maryland counties now collecting a county tax on cigarets but Frederick County plans to reimpose the tax beginning May 1. Garrett County has collected about $101,000 since 1955 from a one-cent-a-pack county tax on cigarets.

Frederick County imposed a two-cent-a-pack cigaret tax from the fall of 1957 until the increased state taxes became effective July 1, 1958, when it was rescinded. In that first period about $80,000 was realized. Now the commissioners have decided to reimpose the cigaret tax beginning May 1 rather than place an additional tax on real estate. It has been estimated that about $150,000 a year will come to Frederick County each year from the real estate tax.

Both the Garrett and Frederick County taxes on cigarets were the result of enabling local legislation adopted by the General Assembly in Annapolis. Before any of the other counties could add to the cigaret tax they would need enabling legislation. Such measures may be enacted in the 90-day sessions held each odd year.

Favor Increase

All of the counties appeared to favor the increased dues to the State Association of County Commissioners designed to enable the group to hire a full-time executive secretary. Allegany County is required to pay $533 into the association.

During the morning session, an apparently unscheduled announcement was made that the Allegany County Board of Commissioners is planning to give all teachers a $100 across-the-board wage increase. The budget recommended by the County Teachers Association and which was submitted to the commissioners by Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster calls for an across-the-board boost of $200 per teacher.

Some 400 teachers and 28 principals are benefitting to the extent of $300 a year from the legislation enacted by the General Assembly in Annapolis in February. That benefits all teachers with 10 years' experience.
